20 PASSENGERS PAY IN PENNIES

Alton Street Car Travelers Get Even With Conductors.

At last the street car passenger has found a way to get even with the conductor who cultivates a grouch at the sight of a dollar bill, offered to him for fare, and sometimes hands back 19 nickels. It happened, of course, in Alton.

For some time Alton conductors have been complaining that passengers, in the morning, kept them busy making change. One of them, Bruce Rintoul, made an unusually vigorous protest a morning or so ago and 20 passengers decided to get even with him.

The 20 waited for Rintoul's car yesterday. They filed aboard and, one by one, offered him five pennies. When his car got downtown Rintoul had to run into the company's office and unload the 100 coins.

BABY 2 POUNDS, 3 OUNCES

Teacup Would Cover Head of Infant at City Hospital.

One of the tiniest infants ever seen in St. Louis is the 2-days-old daughter of Jacob and Fronie Sadowski of 1317 North Eighteenth street, now at the city hospital. The baby weighs 2 pounds and 3 ounces, and an ordinary finger ring will fit over its arm or leg, while a bracelet would comfortably encircle its body and a small teacup cover its head.

The baby was at first placed in an improvised incubator, and while such infants do not usually survive, the hospital physicians thought this one might have a fair chance. It was removed from the incubator today and wrapped in cotton. It is fed with a medicine dropper.

TENOR EXPECTED TO TESTIFY TODAY IN "BABY'S" TRIAL

Chiccolini, Opera Singer, Called to Beauty Shop After Mrs. Nolker Missed $1000.

BLONDE WOMAN IN CASE

Hair Dresser Tells of Stranger in New York Parlor Just Before Loss of Money.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The trial of Albertine Mariowe, 15 years old, accused of having stolen $1000 from the handbag of her friend, Mrs. Robert E. Nolker of St. Louis, was resumed this morning in the Children's Court.

The first witness was Detective James Dawson, on whose insistence that Albertine, or "Baby," had "exclusive opportunity" to steal the money Mrs. Nolker agreed to make the charge against the girl. He corroborated her previous testimony to the effect that when he first arrived at the beauty parlor Mrs. Nolker declared it would be absurd to search "Baby," as she could not possibly have taken the money.

Hair Dresser a Witness.

Marie Meyer, a hair dresser, who left the parlor immediately after the theft was discovered, to fill an outside engagement, being absent a half hour, brought a new element into the case when she told of a woman who had occupied the next booth to Mrs. Nolker in the beauty parlor and who departed before the theft was discovered. This woman, she said, had gone to the dressing table to put a few finishing powder touches on her nose.

It was on this table that Mrs. Nolkers bag was found, with the $1000 missing, though Mrs. Nolker testified vehemently she had not left it there. This woman was described as being short, rather stout, and a blonde, but no one seemed to know who she was.

"Hold That Woman."

Miss Meyer further testified that when Mrs. Nolker discovered her loss, she shouted, "Lock the door! I've lost my purse! Send for the police! Hold that woman!"

The "that woman" referred to was another employe of the shop, referred to in the testimony as "Anna," but she got out of the door before it was locked.

After her testimony a recess was taken until 2 p. m. This afternoon it is expected that Signor Chiccolini, an opera singer, who has figured in much of the testimony as a friend of Mrs. Nolker, will testify. Mrs. Nolker said yesterday that as soon as the theft was discovered she telephoned for detectives, and then for Chiccolini. He has attended every session of the trial.

Reproves "Shouting" Lawyer.

Agent Pizzaro of the Children's Society was an interested spectator at yesterday's hearing. The object of his attendance, it was learned, was to determine whether, in view of the story the girl might tell, he should move that the Court turn the custody of the girl from her parents over to the organization which he represents. He said there were aspects of the case relating to the child's familiarity with Broadway cafes and cabaret performances that he did not like.

Mrs. Nolker, recalled to the stand yesterday, went into her financial affairs more fully. Though she was sure Wednesday there were no $50 bills in her purse last Friday night, after hearing Edmund Burke, an opera singer, testify Wednesday that there were, she changed her mind. She was sure, though, that the bills were stolen in the beauty shop, Saturday.

Nolker gave her at least $1600 after she left St. Louis, Jan. 11, she said. She had some difficulty in accounting for some of her "pin money."

Mrs. Nolker clashed with James A. Turley, Miss Mariowe's lawyer, reproving him for "shouting at her in tones audible outside the courtroom." Later she said that when she found herself robbed she was "highly nervous, excited and agitated, just as I am now."

Mrs. Nolker was forced to admit that

BLACKMAIL GANG ROBBING MEN AND WOMEN, SAY POLICE

Investigation Follows Merchant's Complaint Effort Was Made to Get $1100 From Him.

VICTIMS TELL OF TRAPS

Names of 15 St. Louisans on Papers Found on Prisoner—Several Arrests Made.

Evidence that a gang of blackmailers has been robbing wealthy men and women of St. Louis is in the hands of the police. A wholesale investigation has been ordered as the result of a complaint by Oscar E. Bohlinger, 3885 Humphrey street, a furniture dealer.

Papers and lists found in the possession of a prisoner contain the names of 15 St. Louisans. Detectives have begun questioning these persons as to what they know about the operations of the gang.

Ibsen Will Prosecute.

Bohlinger complained that men had set a trap for him and tried to extort $1100. The police began seizing persons they thought might know something about it. Walter Patterson, a private detective, 4024 Evans avenue, was arrested and released on a common-law bond. A brother of Patterson was also arrested, but was released when the police became convinced that he could not have known about the blackmailers. Fred Dueser, a clerk, 3308 Louisiana avenue, is being detained at police headquarters for investigation as to anything he might know about the plotters. Another arrest is said to be imminent.

In papers that fell into the hands of the authorities was a note for $850 signed with the name of Peter Ibsen, Danish Consul in St. Louis and proprietor of a candy store at 912 Olive street. Ibsen told the police it was part of blackmail that had been levied upon him and said he would prosecute the blackmailers.

Statement by Ibsen.

Although at first Ibsen declined to confirm for publication the story the police said he had told them, he later gave a Post-Dispatch reporter a version which, in substance, was identical with his narrative to the detectives. He said:

"One day last August, I think it was in the early part of August, a young man called at the store and asked to be engaged as a city salesman. He appeared to be a nice chap and I invited him to go with me to Creve Coeur Lake a day or two afterward. I was ill and in no condition for a business discussion.

"We were sitting on the veranda of the cafe at the lake when the young man suggested that we take a walk to the lake.

"We started, but by the time I had gone a short way I felt too ill to continue walking and said I would take a car home. Just after we turned two men suddenly appeared and made most ridiculous charges against me. I was ill and in no condition to fight, so, as the basis of a complaint to the police, I gave the men a note for $350. This was done simply as a decoy.

"The next day a middle-aged man presented the note and I found it had been raised to $800 and something written into the note that was not there when I signed it.

Photograph of the Note.

"As I recall it, I paid $800 for the purpose of getting rid of any false charge against me. Then, a few days later, an old man came with a photograph of the note and demanded money. I do not recall whether or not I paid him anything. I may have paid something, I was so anxious to get rid of the false charge. Then I think there were some other demands for money. One man, not one of the two who had visited me before, came for money. There were several demands that I send money, but I did not reply to them.

"Finally, I paid the third man some money for the photographic plate of the note. I forget just what the amount was. But even after this there were demands sent to me for money, and I appealed to the police for protection from the blackmail. All my employes who have known me, and worked day and night with me for years, know how infamous was the attack upon me. I have an honorable position, and was willing to do almost anything to prevent such false charges being brought. Now, however, I am determined to see the blackmailers punished, and will fight them to a finish."

The police say that Ibsen paid $1600 to the first two men, and gave the third his note for $800.

Traps for Married Women.

One of the methods of the blackmailers, the police say, has been to spy upon married women. If they observed a woman of means with a man other than her husband, they would shadow the two until they had at least plausible evidence of indiscretion. They would take the evidence to the woman and compel her to buy them off, for whatever sum of money she was able to produce.

Afterwards they would go to her companion and get money from him under threat of turning over the information to the husband. They would go to the husband himself and make a third sale of what they possessed.

Bohlinger told the police that, some time ago, a youth appeared at his place of business in search of a job. The young man persuaded him to go to his room at the Marquette Hotel to show

2 U. S. TUGS MOOR NEAR EITEL; SHE IS EXPECTED TO SAIL

Activities Are Said to Mean That the German Cruiser Will Be Towed Out to Sea.

SUPPLIES TAKEN ABOARD

Ocean Raider Has 50,000 Bottles of Beer; Warships Reported Coming to Her Aid.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 2.—Two United States tugs, one of the navy and the other of the army, from the Norfolk Navy Yard, arrived here shortly after noon today and moored at the Prinz Eitel Friedrich's pier. One tug, the Patuent, was moored at the Eitel's stern. The other, the Reno, tied up on the opposite side of the pier. Shortly before their arrival, Collector Hamilton, with a party of officials, boarded the Eitel.

These activities are said to mean that the Eitel will be towed out to sea.

Efforts to ascertain the mission of the tugs and officials were unavailing. United States artillery men with bayonetted rifles turning back inquirers 50 yards from the entrance to the pier. Lieutenant-Commander Svarz, U. S. N., was among the Government representatives at the pier.

Provisions for a 15 days' voyage began going aboard the Prinz Eitel Friedrich today under supervision of the local port authorities.

Close scrutiny still was being kept today on the German ship by American military forces and the battleship Alabama stood guard in Hampton Roads. Reports current here sometime ago that German warships may have escaped from European waters to come to the relief of the Eitel were revived today by the report from Madrid that the Hamburg-American steamer, Macedonia, had evaded British cruisers and was making for South American waters with supplies for German warships.

Allied warships reported off the Virginia Capes today were the Suffolk, Berwick, Caronia and a French vessel, name unknown. Marine men say they are lying on both sides of the channel and about 10 miles off by day and four miles by night.

That the German raider has been playing a game of delay for the purpose of escaping British and French warships off the Virginia Capes was intimated today by her First Lieutenant, who was quoted as saying that the ship would not put to sea until she was assured of some protection on the outside.

He says the German battleship Von Der Tann is in the Atlantic, and that she carries a submarine that is one of the most powerful in the German navy. This submarine, he says, can remain away from its base for 40 days. He is quoted as saying that these ships are now endeavoring to reach this side of the Atlantic.

If the Prinz Eitel sails she will go out with 50,000 bottles of beer, or 100 bottles for each of the 500 men aboard. Under the rules that govern ships in time of war, a belligerent vessel touching at a neutral port may take on supplies sufficient to carry her to her nearest home port.

"An interesting story in connection with this," said Secretary Daniels at Washington, "is that the special naval board appointed to look after the Prinz Eitel trimmed all of the estimates of the German ship for supplies except for beer, and everything asked for in that line was allowed."

Indemnity for Full Value of W. P. Frye Requested of Germany.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Indemnity for the full value of the American ship William P. Frye, destroyed at sea by the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, has been formally requested from Germany by the United States Government. Acting Secretary Lansing announces that a note on the subject has been sent to Ambassador Gerard for presentation to the Foreign Office at Berlin.

No representations were made concerning the cargo since it was established that it was sold en route and was British owned at the time of the sinking.

NORBERT WIENER, 19, ELECTED TO HARVARD FACULTY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 2.—Norbert Wiener, 19 years old, a doctor of philosophy and master of arts, whose feats of learning have attracted wide attention among scholars, has been appointed by special vote of the Harvard faculty to give a course of lectures on "The Theory of Knowledge" to Harvard College students next year.

Young Wiener was graduated from Tufts College at the age of 13 and has been a traveling fellow of Harvard for the last two years. He is now at Cambridge University, England.

Youth Is Son of Prof. Leo Wiener, a Former Missouri Man.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 2.—Norbert Wiener, 19 years old, doctor of philosophy, who will next year become a lecturer at Harvard, was born here. He very early displayed remarkable powers for learning. At the age of 10 he had completed the common school and high school courses and was ready for college.

His father, Leo Wiener, a native of Russia and now a professor of Slavic languages at Harvard, became a resident of Kansas City after emigrating from Russia as a young man. In Kansas City he worked as a shoe string peddler and later as a janitor. He became a language instructor in the Kansas City high schools and from there came here to a chair of languages at the University of Missouri.

CATTLE PLAGUE VIRTUALLY OVER

WASHINGTON, April 2.—While confident that the foot and mouth disease, which has been epidemic among the livestock of the country for the last six months, virtually has been wiped out, Department of Agriculture officials declared today that they would not relax their efforts to prevent a further recurrence of the scourge. It is expected there will still be other sporadic cases of the disease.

Altogether more than 124,000 animals have been killed because of the epidemic at a cost of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, the expense of which has been shared equally by the Federal and State ogevernments.

POOR SWEDE BOY GAVE UP MISSION FOR A GOLD MINE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 2.—The story of a poor Swedish boy, who went to Alaska in 1898 to be a Lutheran evangelist among the Indians, but who renounced his mission and followed the lure of gold, was recounted in the Federal Court in Kansas City, Kan., today.

Nels O. Hultborg, to whom the interests of the Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America have been intrusted, is trying to gain possession of a farm in Dickinson County, Kan., the title to which is vested in Friedelborg Anderson, wife of Peter H. Anderson, the man who deserted his mission to hunt gold.

Anderson left Kansas in 1891 with his small savings to attend a college which is maintained in Chicago by the Swedish Evangelical Mission. His money held out for two years and he made progress in his studies. But when the third year of his course opened he was penniless. He explained his predicament to the college directors, who agreed to pay his expense through school if at his graduation he would give his services as a missionary in Alaska. They fulfilled their part of the contract and when he graduated he went to Alaska and conducted the mission.

In 1899 Anderson filed on what is now known as Claim No. 9, and it is said he took $400,000 out of the mine between 1899 and 1902. Between $75,000 and $100,000 was paid by Anderson to the Swedish Evangelical Mission Covenant of America to satisfy any claim it might have on his time when he was taking out the gold, it is said. He supposed his obligation there was satisfied and came back to America.

Last summer Hultborg discovered that Mrs. Anderson held the title to a 900-acre ranch in Dickinson County, Kan., said to be worth $75,000. He then instituted the case, which is being heard by Judge Pollock. By dozens of depositions, many of them taken in faraway Sweden, Hultborg is endeavoring to show that the farm was purchased with Anderson's money and that it is being held in Mrs. Anderson's name only as a matter of form. Hultborg's attorneys have made ineffectual attempts to find Mrs. Anderson to obtain her position.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE U20

Eleven Members of Bark's Crew Landed in Holland After Attack in North Sea — Sixth Neutral Vessel Torpedoed Since Feb. 18.

Three British Fishing Vessels Are Blown Up by the U10 After Crews Are Safely in Boats.

U28 Operates Off Coast of Spain, Sinking Steamer Returning After Delivering Flour for Belgians.

By Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, April 2.—Eleven men, the crew of the Norwegian bark Nor, torpedoed in the North Sea by the German submarine U20, have been landed by the steamer Unita at the Hook of Holland.

This is the sixth neutral vessel reported torpedoed by German submarines since Germany's decree declaring waters around the British Isles a war zone went into effect, Feb. 18. The Norwegian steamer Belridge was torpedoed Feb. 19, but was beached. The Regin, a Norwegian vessel, was torpedoed Feb. 23, the Noorsdyk (Dutch) March 5, the Hanna (Swedish) March 13, with a loss of six lives, and the Media (Dutch) March 24.

U-10 SINKS THREE FISHING VESSELS

German Submarine Blows Up Trawlers After Crews Are Safely in Small Boats.

LONDON, April 2.—Activity by German submarines in the waters around the British Isles and even as far as Spain continued to be reported today. A dispatch from Newcastle says the Tyne trawlers (small fishing vessels) the Gloxiani, Jason and Nellie, were sunk by the German submarine U10 yesterday. After all the members of the crews were safely in small boats, the Germans blew up the trawlers.

They then towed the fisherman toward the Tyne until they encountered fishing craft which took the men ashore. The fishermen say the commander of the submarine was genial. He supplied hot coffee and tobacco to them, but told them: "We have orders to sink everything. It is war and England started it."

A Reuter dispatch from Lisbon says the British steamer Southpoint, the crew of which was landed yesterday at Lisbon, was not lost in a storm, as at first reported, but was sunk by the German submarine U28, 60 miles off Cape Finisterre, which is on the northeast coast of Spain. The British steamer, Seven Seas, was sent to the bottom yesterday afternoon without warning, 11 of her crew being drowned.

The British losses already reported since Sunday are six steamers (exclusive of the trawlers), a seventh vessel was torpedoed but reached port. During the week ending March 31, however, 1557 vessels entered and sailed from British ports.

It is more than 700 miles from Cape Finisterre to the nearest German submarine base. The Cape is about 500 miles north of Gibraltar.

The British steamer Seven Seas, of 812 tons, was torpedoed by a German submarine off Beachy Head yesterday afternoon. The attack was without warning and 11 of her crew of 13, including all the officers except the second engineer, were drowned. The steamer was bound from London for Liverpool.

Such was the force of the explosion that the hatches were blown off and a big hole was torn in the steamer's side, causing her to sink within three minutes. The survivors, three of whom were injured, were landed at New Haven by a destroyer.

The two survivors of the French steamer Emma, who were taken to Dover, say their vessel was in ballast and was therefore so light that she failed to answer the helm quickly. It was for this reason impossible to avoid the torpedo, which struck her on the starboard side just abaft the engine room. The terrific explosion nearly split the steamer in two and must have killed many of the engine room hands.

The disaster, the men declared, was appalling in its completeness. There was no time to launch a boat and within a few minutes not a vestige of the ship was visible. There was no wreckage to cling to, but, being powerful swimmers, the two men were able to keep afloat for two hours until a destroyer came to the rescue.

The Southpoint, which recently changed her name to Eaton, sailed from Philadelphia for Rotterdam March 11, taking a cargo of flour to the Belgian sufferers from the war. The steamer arrived in Rotterdam March 1 and after unloading put to sea. Dowey, England, whence she sailed March 20 for Philadelphia.

LONDON, April 2.—The liquor question, brought to the fore by the statement of Lloyd-George that alcohol was England's worst enemy and by the action of the King and his advisers in promising to give up the use of alcoholic beverages, continued today to overshadow in public interest even the news from war theaters.

It is stated authoritatively that the Cabinet is in favor of total prohibition, which, under the defense of the realm act, it has the power to enforce without any further legislation.

Full-Page Petitions Printed.

This is Good Friday, and in London there are no afternoon papers, but it is doubtful if the biggest headlines chronicling military activity could divert the attention of the people from the all-absorbing topic of the possibility of a "dry" country.

Several of the London morning papers appeared today with full page advertisements presenting petitions with the request that supporters of the movement cut them out and send them to Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George. These petitions read:

"I am entirely in favor of the suspension of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors during the war, which I consider imperative for a quick and successful termination of the war. I shall heartily support the Government in any such measure."

The petition idea is backed by merchants and business men and other employers of labor, who disclaim any save a war interest in the proposed measure.

The sense of personal liberty is so strong in England that it may defeat total prohibition. But the sense of fair play fights on the side of the extreme measure, for the opinion is growing that if employes be deprived of their right to drink, employers must take their place in the same boat.

Shipyard workers are refusing to enter public houses. Little or no liquor was called for today in restaurants and clubs, and tea rooms were crowded. These facts showed that the King's appeal has made a great impression everywhere.

In addition to Earl Kitchener, all the Cabinet Ministers in London announced to Lloyd-George, according to the Daily Mail, their intention to follow the King's pledge to abstain from alcoholic liquors during the war, if it is thought necessary. Among other prominent men who will do likewise are Earl Brassy, Baron Cowdray, Baron Sydenham and Sir Charles W. Macara.

Would Take Over Saloons.

Earl Grey writes to the Times, suggesting that the Government take over all the licensed houses in specific districts, as it has already taken over the railways and factories, giving the license holders a fair compensation, and either closing the houses altogether or administering them on reformed principles.

It scarcely can be doubted that Lloyd-George favors total prohibition, and the King's action suggests that His Majesty heartily approves of the attitude of the Chancellor.

According to the unwritten constitution of this country, the King is above the law; but His Majesty is anxious to show that, in this matter, whatever legislation or other measures may be adopted in order to deal with one of the most pressing needs of the nation, he is not desirous of asserting the privileges of his position. As Stamfordham's memorable letter says: "No difference shall be made so far as His Majesty is concerned, between the treatment of the rich and the poor in this question."

It is interesting to recall that the last occasion on which an English leader sought to exercise his influence in the direction of temperance, by publicly taking the pledge, was when Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton declared that, as an example to the army, he would touch no alcoholic drink for a period of 12 months.

Last October the Archbishop of Canterbury issued an appeal in the following terms:

"If those who can rightly do so, and who care sufficiently to make what would be a real and sustained act of self-denial, were to undertake to be themselves abstainers during the continuance of the war, the resultant good might be such as to surprise us all."

Archbishop's Opinion.

Then, a few weeks ago, Sir Edward Clarke came forward with a definite proposal that, at this crisis in English history, the clergy of the Church of England of all degrees should set an example to the nation by a great united act of self-denial. On March 18 Clarke published in the Times a letter he had received from the Archbishop of Canterbury, who wrote:

"Of course, by the very making of my appeal, I declared my own abstinence. The response, though considerable, has been less than I hope for. You think, if Bishops and clergy would abstain, the effect on the country would be immediate and far-reaching. I hope you are right, but I think that any distinction between clergy and laity in such a matter is rather unfortunate; and I doubt whether those whom it is most important that we should help would be greatly stirred, or even interested, by the fact that Bishops and clergy, a great proportion of whom already are life abstainers, were making such a promise.

"I think we want drastic legislation or drastic action on the part of the authorities, to whom emergency legislation exercising unusual powers ought not to lag in so great a matter at this solemn time."

The Daily News considers that, in the light of Kitchener's response to the King's appeal, the Archbishop's attitude seems somewhat half-hearted, and that the clergy, now that they have such a lead from their sovereign, are not likely to hesitate in playing their part in setting the country an example of self-denial.

There naturally is great alarm in the brewing industry, and in a circular issued today, the Allied Brewers' Trades Association says:

"This is a serious matter, entirely outside the actual brewing and distilling trades. Not less than one hundred millions of capital and one million of work people are employed in the supply to brewers and distillers of materials and plants used in the production and distribution of their products. If workers are deprived of what is actually a necessary part of their daily food, are we not likely to be faced with dangers enormously greater than at present? Is it not merely a question for the Government to devise a means of bringing home to the workers engaged in the manufacture of munitions of war their responsibilities to the nation and their co-workers in the trenches?"

Goods to Be Sent to America.

It is predicted here by some American merchants that large quantities of wines and liquors will be sent soon to America.

Millions of dollars' worth of wines and whisky, being kept for maturity, may seek the American market, as well as great quantities of champagne.

American imports of distilled spirits, wines and malt liquors in 1914, amounted to $19,000,000 approximately, but if prohibition is instituted here American imports will be greatly swollen.

It was learned today that the stock of some breweries and distilleries already were dropping heavily. It is not believed here that grog will be removed from navy rations.

BRYAN DISCUSSES EVILS OF DRINKING

"If John Barleycorn Is Failure in Fight, Who Can Respect Him in Time of Peace?"

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Asked for an interview on the advancement of prohibition as shown in the London news of abstinence as a war measure, backed by the King of England and Earl Kitchener, Secretary Bryan said:

"It has been evident for some time that the prohibition sentiment was growing throughout the world. The war has increased that sentiment. I can do no better than to refer to my recent speech at Philadelphia on the subject of abstinence.

"The European war is giving conclusive proof that total abstinence has its value on the battlefield. Russia has gone to the extent of abolishing the sale of liquor even though in doing so she sacrifices an annual revenue of $400,000,000 in the midst of war.

"The German Emperor is an advocate of total abstinence.

"The British Government is refusing liquor to its soldiers and in France the Legislature is considering the liquor question.

"If John Barleycorn is a failure in a fight, who can respect him in time of peace?

Investment in Humanity.

"A man cannot advise others not to drink when he himself drinks. Indulgence compels silence on the subject.

"No man can afford to spend money for drink—not even a small amount of money. If one does not need all of his money, either for immediate use or as a protection against the infirmities of age, the world around presents opportunities for use of his money in innumerable altruistic ways. There is no investment so profitable as investment in humanity.

"He who out of brotherly love aids his fellow man in proportion as he is able to aid draws from such contributions a joy infinitely more satisfying than can be drawn from the use of liquor.

"We are so bound together that we cannot escape from the indirect effect of anything that is harmful to society.

"From the lowest standpoint upon which the subject can be discussed namely, the pecuniary interest, we are compelled to use our influence to lessen drinking.

"The use of liquor is the direct cause of crime, of poverty, of degradation and of despair, and we can never tell when we shall ourselves suffer at the hands of those who are victims of intemperance. We have, as members of society, an interest in preventing the economic waste, tremendous in amount, due to the deteriorating influence of intoxicating liquor. We have also a moral interest in lifting society to the highest plane, a thing impossible so long as the ravages of drink are felt in so many homes."

"Prohibition in Five Years."

National prohibition within five years—if not sooner. That, says Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, leader of the dry forces in Congress, is the meaning of England's agitation against drinking.

"It means we will have a good chance to put our prohibition resolution through Congress next winter," he said. "England's example, following Russia's, will give tremendous impetus to the movement in this country. It will be striking proof of the fact that the demand for prohibition of the liquor traffic is not merely an agitation by a limited number of cranks, but is a world-wide awakening.

"England and Russia have seen how the liquor traffic interferes with the efficiency of the single citizen and the nation. In December, when I discussed in the Senate the movement for prohibition in the various countries of the world, I did not anticipate that England would so soon take this definite step.

"England has had total prohibition before, in times of great emergencies; once as far back as the fourteenth century. Parliament has tried every form of license and regulation, but has found prohibition the only successful method of dealing with the matter. The action taken now will lead ultimately to permanent prohibition in that country.

"Russia and England now, the United States very soon, and in time the whole world. The saloons must go. Raus mit 'em!"

$833,405,000 Spent for Drink in United Kingdom in 1913

THE United Kingdom's liquor bill for 1913 was higher than in 1912, and the total for 1914 was above 1913, according to unofficial figures. The totals in 1913 and in 1912 were:

1913—$833,405,000.
1912—$807,766,650.

In the latter year (a time of peace) the expenditures for defense were:

Army—$133,245,000.
Navy—$239,296,000.

It appears from the statistical abstract of the British Empire, a Government work, that the consumption, per capita, of spirits and beer in the last year under observation, 1908, measured in gallons, was as follows in the United Kingdom, compared with other great countries:

	Spirits.	Beer.	Wine.
United Kingdom	0.70	26.2	0.27
Germany	1.58	22.0	1.19
France	1.32	7.9	24.5
Russia	1.10	*...	*...
United States	1.14	16.5	0.49

*Not counted.

In 1913 the average expenditure per head for the year for drink was $90.50. The average per head is highest in England, lower in Scotland, lowest in Ireland.

The Government revenue in 1913-14 from excise duties amounted in the United Kingdom to $197,950,000. For 1914-15 the duties are estimated by the Government at $198,250,000.

GREY DEPARTS AS U. S. NOTE ARRIVES; ASQUITH IN CHARGE

British Foreign Secretary to Be Away at Least Three Weeks for Rest.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, April 2.—As the British Cabinet is about to face the protest of the United States on the allies' embargo on trade with Germany, Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreogn Secretary, has taken a leave of absence from his post and Premier Asquith has assumed charge of the Foreign Office.

The American note had not been delivered when the Foreign Secretary left his office and there is a suggestion that it will not be presented until after the Premier has had his Easter holiday, which would put the matter off until Monday or Tuesday.

The American Ambassador, Walter Hines Page, will not go out of the city for the holidays, but it was explained at the embassy that he is not remaining because he fears any developments regarding the note, but because he has not been away for a week-end since the war began and so is not changing his rule at this time.

Grey to Be Gone Three Weeks.

The departure of Sir Edward Grey came unexpectedly to the public at least. There was a disposition at the Foreign Office to minimize the incident and to say that he had taken an opportunity for a 10-days holiday at the Easter season and that such action could be construed as showing that there was no critical question likely to come up during that time. It was explained among other high officials, however, that he had been compelled to take a rest because of the great strain he had undergone during the war and it was said that he would be absent for at least three weeks and possibly longer.

Sir Edward is now an idol of the British people, because of his conduct of various diplomatic affairs before and during the war. His maneuvering of Germany into a position of aggressiveness, his work in keeping Italy out of the line of the Triple Alliance, his coup in binding France and Russia not to conclude a separate peace, and his success in blocking Germany's efforts in the Balkans have brought enthusiastic support to him from all parties.

DEATH SENTENCES COMMUTED

JEFFERSON CITY, April 2.—Gov. Major today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences imposed on John Tattman and Sam Sherman, convicted of the murder of Policeman John Lynch of Kansas City.

TROOPS CHARGE ANTI-WAR CROWD IN AUSTRIAN CAPITAL

Opposition to Continuance of Fighting Increases as Food Becomes Scarce.

By Associated Press.

ROME, April 2.—Advices received here from the Austrian frontier describe the internal situation in the dual monarchy as increasingly grave. Opposition to a continuance of the war is said to be growing stronger among the classes which are suffering most from the scarcity of food. Violent anti-war demonstrations are reported to have occurred in several cities, especially Vienna, where a crowd attempted to stone the windows of the war office, but was charged by the police and troops. Several persons are said to have been wounded and many others arrested.

Both the Russian and Turkish Ambassadors to Italy, interviewed by the Giornale d'Italia, emphatically asserted that there was no foundation for the report that Djavid Pasha, Turkish Minister of Finance, who is now in Geneva, has been entrusted with the task of negotiating a separate Russo-Turkish peace treaty.

M. Kroupenski, the Russian Ambassador, is quoted by the Giornale d'Italia as declaring that Russia never would conclude peace separately from Great Britain and France, especially when she was on the eve of realizing the oldest Muscovite ambition.

Naby Bey, the Turkish Ambassador, asserted that his country would remain faithful to her allies and never would conclude a peace separately from them. He added that there was no reason why Turkey should seek to end hostilities at this time, for she occupies an excellent position in the Caucasus, while the Dardanelles have proved impregnable and she is preparing surprises in Egypt.

Russian Paper Intimates Austria Is Seeking Peace.

PETROGRAD, April 2.—The Russky Slovoe prints a note intimating that the Russian Government has been approached through neutral channels with overtures from Austria for a separate peace without Germany's knowledge.

Fugitives Carry $6,000,000.

HAVANA, April 2.—Gen. Argumendo, the autonomist Governor of Yucatan, Mex., accompanied by 19 comrades, arrived here yesterday on the little schooner Isidore, after a trip of nine days from Port Cayo, which is 150 miles from Progreso. The party brought $6,000,000 gold, silver and Mexican currency, most of it belonging to the Treasury of the autonomist Government.

SALVETER DIVORCE DISMISSED

Suit Was Second Filed Since Marriage in April, 1913.

Louis L. Salveter's divorce suit against Louise Dougherty Salveter of 5615 Waterman avenue, his third wife, was dismissed today by his lawyer, George E. Mix. This was the second divorce proceeding between the Salveters, the wife having filed a previous suit, which was dismissed. The lawyer said he acted on Salveter's instructions, and that he did not know whether there had been a reconciliation.

Salveter divorced his second wife Blanche E. Hamilton Salveter, shortly before he married his present wife, in April, 1913, at Hot Springs, Ark. Her divorce suit was filed the following month, but was withdrawn after a reconciliation. There was another separation, March 1 last, according to Salveter's petition, filed March 3, and today withdrawn.

Snapshot of St. Louis Woman at Trial of Her Young Protege

MRS ROBERT NOLKER in COURT.

"Baby" Is a Good Girl, Witnesses Say at Her Trial

two persons besides "Baby" and her mother, who had come to the hairdressing rooms at the telephone call of Miss Marlowe, were not searched by Detective Dawson. They were Chiccolini, the Italian tenor, and Antoine Scharf, proprietor of the establishment. Chiccolini did not arrive at the Seventh avenue place until some time after the theft took place. Scharf, it was testified, was not seen around the beauty parlor at the time the theft is alleged to have taken place.

Mrs. Nolker gave her testimony with the same dramatic and indignant intensity that provided the spectators an interesting afternoon the day before. She continually importuned her lawyer, Isidor J. Kresel, not to make objections.

"Let them ask me that; just let them ask me that," she pleaded. Later in the hearing she grasped the arm of her counsel when she had been cut short in a statement and said:

"They've interrupted me; I'd like to say something else."

"I know you would," he said, and smiled.

"Not as Smart as That Girl."

Mrs. Nolker admitted the booth on each side of her was occupied when she had her work done at the hairdresser's. Lawyer Turley tried to get her to describe the occupants.

"Was the lady in the second booth a blonde or a brunette?" he asked.

"I don't remember," she replied, glaring at "Baby," who sat unconcernedly a few feet from her. "I'm not as smart as that little 15-year-old girl, and I didn't notice."

The complaining witness reiterated that while she was in the chiropodist's compartment, Miss Marlowe put her (Mrs. Nolker's) mesh bag on her arm and walked out, but she cut down her estimate of the time that Miss Marlowe was gone. She said the day before that the girl was absent about five minutes, returning without the mesh bag. She said yesterday the girl was gone only a few seconds. When she asked where her mesh bag had gone, she said Miss Marlowe exclaimed:

"Oh," and the two of them went to the other room and recovered the bag, but the $1000 was missing.

The Judge Didn't Dance.

A ripple of amusement was caused in the redirect examination when Lawyer Kresel returned to the informal party in Mrs. Nolker's apartments last Saturday morning, at which Chester Norton of Louisville, Chiccolini, Justice Peter A. Hendrick, Miss Marlowe and Mrs. Nolker's sister were present. Norton is a son of George Norton, one of the wealthiest men of the South. His sister was once reported engaged to Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Nolker had replied hastily to a question by opposing counsel the day before by saying it was true that "we all danced."

"Did Judge Hendrick dance there in your apartments?" Kresel asked.

"No, he did not dance."

"Is that the only time he ever came to your apartments?"

"That is the only time. Mr. Norton brought him to hear me sing."

Louis Oskosli, the chiropodist, in whose booth she discovered her loss, injected the possibility of a "mysterious woman" by testifying that someone cried "don't let that woman out." Turley could not fix Mrs. Nolker as the speaker, though she admitted she might have said it of an attendant.

Detective Dawson said he investigated the case, but cast light on the occurrences in the place or on a conversation that night in Mrs. Nolker's apartment, 57 West Fifty-seventh street, when Miss Marlowe and her mother were present and he was in a closet.

DETROIT STREET CAR COMPANY TO SELL OUT TO CITY

Stockholders Accept $24,900,000 Offer for One-Fare Zone Lines.

DETROIT, Mich., April 2.—The stockholders of the Detroit United Railroads have authorized the directors of the company to close negotiations at once for the sale of the one-fare zone lines to the city. The stockholders took up the city's $24,900,000 offer without delay, and adopted a resolution empowering the directors to close the deal as quickly as possible.

The Municipal Railway Commission at a meeting held at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and attended by Commissioners James Couzens, James Wilkie and John Dodge, received the railroads' communication and discussed it. The letter was made public at 11 o'clock this morning.

James Couzens, president of the Railway Commission, declares that the commission will have to enter into new negotiations with the street railroad officials on certain phases of the offer before any proposition is submitted to the people for ratification.

Couzens, however, expects that all the tangles will be straightened out and that the matter will be submitted to a vote of the people at a special election about the middle of May. The commission plans to give the people 30 days in which to study any plan that is to be submitted. The $24,000,000 offer will likely be modified to some extent.

The city's purchase price represents a mortgage debt of the lines, which the city would assume upon approval of the voters, instead of the payment of a cash price.

POLICE STRUCK HIM, SAYS MAN IN THE CATHEDRAL BOMB CASE

Carmine Carbone Declares They Demanded He Implicate I. W. W. Organizer.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Carmine Carbone continued to testify in his own behalf when the trial of himself and Frank Abarno, accused of attempting to set off bombs in St. Patrick's cathedral, was resumed today. Carbone denied mixing the ingredients for the bombs, saying this had been done by Detective Polignani. He said Polignani told him the following Tuesday would be the best time to plant the devices.

"I promised to go along," the witness said, "but I hadn't the slightest intention of doing so."

Carbone said policeman at Police Headquarters struck him when he said he could not implicate Carlo Tresca, the Industrial Workers of the World organizer, and others. Capt. Tunney, he declared, said if he did not give such testimony he would get from 40 to 50 years.

Daintiest Costume of the Season

Will Lose Its Effect Unless the Hair Is Pretty and Properly Dressed.

The woman who looks to clothes for her charm and attractiveness is likely to find her most expensive outfit a failure if she has thin, faded or lifeless hair. The most beautiful evening gown will appear dowdy and out of style unless crowned with a head of pretty hair, soft, fluffy and lustrous.

Beautiful hair does not just happen to be so, but is always a matter of care and proper nourishment of the hair roots. No matter how unsightly your hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, Parisian Sage, an inexpensive tonic, well rubbed into the scalp, is all that is ever needed. The hair roots are nourished and stimulated to grow new hair. Even dandruff is entirely removed with one application, and itching scalp and falling hair cease; the hair will be bright, vigorous, soft and fluffy.

If the hair is oily, dry, brittle, or you have dandruff, Parisian Sage, which is easily obtained at any drug counter or from Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., immediately removes the cause; by toning up the scalp, it quickly restores the hair to its original brilliancy and vigor.

Parisian Sage is a delightful and harmless treatment that never fails to act as a real and lasting benefit to the hair and scalp.—ADV.

WOMEN A FACTOR IN CITY ELECTION OF EAST ST. LOUIS

Chamberlin and Mollman Both Making Appeals to 4000 Who Are Registered.

LAMBERT INJECTS ISSUE

Charge That Mayor "Double Crossed" Him After He Helped Elect Him Widely Circulated.

One of the most vigorous campaigns in recent East St. Louis political affairs will reach a climax in the election there next Tuesday. Always renowned for liveliness in its municipal contests, East St. Louis this year has added a few extra fringes. One of the uncertainties is what will be the effect of some 4000 women's ballots that may be cast then for the first time in the election of a Mayor.

In its broader outlines the campaign is between factions headed by Mayor John M. Chamberlin, who seeks re-election, and Fred W. Mollman, anti-administration candidate for Mayor. Strictly speaking, Mollman's ticket should not be called anti-administration, inasmuch as three present office holders are supporting it.

In street parlance, Chamberlin's ticket is supposed to represent the wide-open-town element and Mollman's the law-and-order element. It is regarded as significant that neither leader strictly acknowledges these designations, both contending that they are trying to clean up the city. When Chamberlin ran two years ago his platform was reduced to the picturesque phrase that he intended to make "East St. Louis more like home and less like hell." His opponents ridiculed the high-sounding declaration.

Issues Are Beclouded.

The issues in this campaign have been greatly beclouded, so much so that the "wide-open" and "reform" designations will scarcely apply. While Chamberlin undoubtedly has the backing of some of the most radical liberals, other equally as radical have gone over to the camp of his enemies.

Former Mayor Charles Lambert stirred up things considerably Wednesday when he made an affidavit which is being circulated by Mollman's friends. In this statement Lambert declared that when he was Mayor, two years ago, he made a dicker with Chamberlin. Under the terms of this he consented to discharge Chief of Police Sam Overmire and Chief Electrician Charles Brown, shove a bill through the Council increasing the Mayor's salary from $3000 to $5000 a year and support Chamberlin politically and financially for election. In return Chamberlin was to make Lambert Commissioner of Public Works and President of the Board of Local Improvements, at a salary of $2000 a year.

Lambert declared that he performed his part of the contract, but that Chamberlin "double-crossed" him after the election, by failing to appoint him to the office he coveted.

This affidavit was procured and prepared for general circulation by Joseph L. Keys, a manufacturer. Keys was ostensible campaign manager for Chamberlin two years ago, but this year is active in Mollman's campaign. He gives as his reason that Chamberlin refused to keep an ante-election agreement to consult a committee of 100 business men upon such important matters as valuable city franchises.

Trouble About Franchises.

Keys and some 50 other business men are championing the cause of Mollman, whom they induced to make the race. They assert that Chamberlin ignored the wishes of the business men in granting a 30-year water franchise and in granting a franchise to the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway for tracks on Main street. They charge that the franchises were granted without adequate compensation to the city.

Chamberlin is making campaign material out of the payment of old claims left by previous administrations with $75,000 obtained from the water company on its franchise grant, and on his recent action in closing up the disorderly district. His opponents insist that for 23 months the disorderly district was permitted to run openly, saloons were never closed and the city's winerooms and gambling houses were run openly, without action by the city government. An attempt is being made also to discredit Chamberlin by charging that in a speech before the Commercial Club last fall he said "the average standard of citizenship in East St. Louis is so low that municipal ownership of public utilities would be a calamity."

Mollman, who is a harness manufacturer, formerly the publisher of a Democratic newspaper, is a member of the Levee Board elected two years ago. He has not been attacked personally, but Chamberlin's friends have had the Levee Board under fire.

Dan McGlynn and Robert Sikking, former attorney and secretary respectively of the Levee Board, are conducting the attack. They charge that the present board has not done enough work for the money available. Mollman's supporters counter with the statement that the present board, as soon as it came into office, brought suit against the Wiggins Ferry Co., charging that said had been substituted for dirt in some of the work. McGlynn, whose son is on Chamberlin's ticket, appeared as attorney for the ferry company.

Others on Tickets.

Chamberlin's ticket includes Fred Lehman for City Treasurer, David Walsh for City Clerk and Joseph McGlynn for City Attorney. Mollman's ticket includes Robert R. Thomas for Treasurer, John M. Griffin for Clerk and John D. Minock for Attorney.

On the aldermanic ticket, an especially bitter fight is being made against Chamberlin's supporter, George Banner, candidate from the First Ward, who is a bartender at the "305" saloon.

Frank Keating, present city treasurer, and City Attorney Fekete, who were elected two years ago on Chamberlin's ticket, are supporting Mollman. City Clerk Griffin, also elected with Chamberlin, is a candidate on the opposition ticket.

A majority of the Councilmen, all but two of whom were elected with Chamberlin, are opposing him now. He is being supported warmly, however, by Chief of Detectives Lester J. Grigsby and by many officials of the Lambert administration.

Each side is playing for the women's vote. Mollman's party makes the loudest claims. A Chamberlin campaign manager several days ago claimed 75 per cent of the negro and 45 per cent of the white votes. Mollman's supporters are claiming victory by 2500 votes, and Chamberlin's by 1000. The registration is 18,000, including the 4000 women.

Milford's, Noted 50 Years for Sea Food, Is Closed

Restaurant, Once One of Most Fashionable in the City, Run of Late by a Chinese, Who Has Moved to Market Street.

When Milford's Restaurant, 209 North Sixth street, one of the oldest restaurants in St. Louis, closed its doors finally last night, the Chinese commander carried his flag to his chop suey camp in Market street and said he no care. About 50 years ago Milford's was established by George Milford on Third street, near the old postoffice and the business remained in the hands of the family until last December, when it was sold to Lee Bing, a Chinese caterer.

Lee had retained the American dishes, which had made Milford's famous, but had added chop suey and had intended converting the place into a Chinese restaurant. The lease expired yesterday, however, and he said he was unable to secure a satisfactory renewal, so decided to close the restaurant.

Milford's, until the middle of the 90's, was one of the most fashionable restaurants in the city and its closing just after the passing of Moser's and the public discussion regarding the future of Faust's, caused much comment among old St. Louisans, and adds interest to the projected plan of Faust's to attempt to revive its former galeties by inaugurating a cabaret entertainment.

Throughout its career Milford's has been noted for its sea food. The place was started as an oyster house. It was the first restaurant in the city to introduce private dining booths, which at the time were regarded as the height of luxury for dining. When the restaurant was moved to Sixth street 30 years ago, it was conducted in connection with Milford's Hotel, but the hotel has been under other management for several years. The Sixth street place was under the management of William Milford, a nephew of George Milford, who, when he retired from the Third street business, went into politics.

Since the death of William Milford, two years ago, the place has been conducted by his widow and sons, Richard and William, until the business was purchased by Lee Bing.

The property is owned by Julius S. Walsh and some of the tenants said today there have been reports that the old building would be razed and a new hotel erected on the site.

Blackmail Gang Robbing Men and Women, Say Police

him certain papers. They had been in the room only a few minutes, when another man came in. He exhibited a badge, glared threateningly at the furniture man, and told him he would have to give an accounting later.

Afterward a man telephoned Bonlinger to meet him at Fifteenth and Wash streets. When they met the man proved to be the one who had made the threat at the hotel. He accused Bohlinger of mistreating his "little brother," but said it could be squared for $1100.

Notified the Police.

Bohlinger promised to meet him there the next day with the money. Instead he notified the police. Detectives watched at the rendezvous, but the man failed to appear. Patterson was arrested on description. Bohlinger declares he is the man.

Patterson was arrested in January, 1910, on complaint of Richard Niedhardt of 3311 Vista avenue. Niedhardt told the police Patterson sold him four letters written by a woman to a man for $300. Later the police learned that Patterson and the man to whom the letters had been sent were the same person. Niedhardt did not prosecute and no warrant was issued for Patterson.

All the notes, names and other papers the police found have been turned over to Circuit Attorney Harvey.

JITNEY SERVICE PROMOTER ENDS LIFE BY POISON

Lee Massengale Leaves Note to Wife Saying He Had Lost All His Money.

Lee Massengale, president of the Rapid Transit Association, formed to regulate and systematize a portion of the jitney bus service in St. Louis, killed himself by swallowing poison at his home, 3129 Bond avenue, East St. Louis, shortly after 6 a. m. today. He was 45 years old.

A note, written to his wife, stated he had lost all his money and was ending his life so she might collect his insurance, which would be ample for the needs of herself and their four children.

Massengale came to St. Louis two years ago and, as a subcontractor, erected the trolley wires for the Southern Traction Co. between East St. Louis and Belleville. When the traction company went into bankruptcy it owed Massengale some salary.

Had Called Meeting for Today.

Recently Massengale had tried unsuccessfully to finance a scheme to manufacture patent leather on the East Side, and had been organizing the jitney association. He had arranged a meeting of 40 or 50 jitney bus owners for this afternoon at the offices of Max F. Ruler, an attorney, when final organization plans were to have been discussed. Last week he announced three jitney busses, each seating 15 persons and with uniformed girls as conductors would be put into service this week.

Ruler said Massengale had conferred with him last night and seemingly was in a happy frame of mind. Ruler had understood Massengale also had been investing in a gold mining venture in Colorado.

Massengale arose early this morning, fed chickens in the back yard and returned to the house. He told his wife he had been having financial troubles, and said they were all over. He went to a bedroom and laid down. Five minutes later his wife found him dying. She called a physician, but Massengale died within a few minutes.

Massengale wrote this note to his wife: "You will find a check for $11.55. It is all the money I have. Pay for mother's tombstone. I am doing this for your sake."

Mrs. Massengale believed the last sentence in the note related to what she said was a large amount of insurance her husband carried. She would not state the amount.

An analysis will be made to determine what poison Massengale took.

CITY CLUB HEARS CURLEE, BEISEL AND FREDERICK

Candidates for President of Board of Alderman Make Campaign Talks at Luncheon.

MERIT SYSTEM IS URGED

Heads of Two Old Party Tickets Declare for Municipal Electric Light Plant.

Francis M. Curlee, A. H. Frederick and Peter Beisel, Democratic, Republican and Socialist nominees for President of the Board of Aldermen, made campaign talks before the City Club at luncheon today, Frank P. Crunden, former Councilman, presided.

Curlee, who spoke first, declared that national politics should have no weight in city affairs, and that no one should vote for him or for Frederick because of anything that has happened in Washington or in Jefferson City. He told of the part he took, before he became a candidate himself, in helping to persuade business men to run for Aldermen, and he said that of 29 recommended by the business men's conference 25 had been nominated, but one of whom has previously held office.

The men nominated for Aldermen by the Democrats, he said, have been sought by the office, if men ever were, and their success would encourage the participation of business men in public men in public affairs, while their defeat would be a warning that none but politicians need apply.

Favors Merit System.

Curlee then spoke in favor of the sincere and thorough administration of the merit system. He said he believed the city would build a municipal electric light plant, and that he favored such action, but he added that unless the civil service rules were properly administered, municipal ownership would not be of advantage. He predicted that, with proper administration, a city-owned electric light plant would be the forerunner of public ownership of other sorts.

"Determined spoilsmen," he said, "can make a scrap of paper out of the best charter ever written, unless right-thinking men are vigilant to preserve it."

For "Open Door Policy."

Frederick began his talk by the admission that national issues were "not paramount" in a city campaign. He spoke of the Republican city platform, which he said embodied his own suggestions in part, and mentioned the fact that he was not supported by the party machine at the primaries. He spoke in favor of a municipal electric light plant, first to light the streets and public buildings, and then to supply consumers generally.

He also spoke in favor of playground extension, grade-crossing abolition, abatement of the River des Peres odors, control of the Industrial School by the Board of Education and the "open door policy" toward manufacturers and investors.

Of the new charter, Frederick said: "I believe in it, and if I am elected, I will carry out every provision to the best of my ability."

QUESTION OF THRESHER'S DEATH TO BE CONSIDERED PROMPTLY

Washington Awaits Details of Loss of American in German Submarine Attack.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—While further reports from Ambassador Page and Consul-General Skinker at London on the death of Leon C. Thresher, an American, in the sinking of the British steamer Falaba by a German submarine, must be received before the Washington Government can determine on what course it will pursue, State Department officials let it be known today that there would be no delay in arriving at a decision when the official version of the incident was at hand.

Unless evidence gathered by American officials abroad clearly shows the German submarine commander was within his rights under the rules of international law as they were observed before the present war, the question of Thresher's death, officials believe, will be taken up with Germany through diplomatic channels.

BURNED PLAYING WITH MATCHES

Girl, Three Years Old, Is in a Critical Condition.

Margaret Spelding, 3 years old, was burned, probably fatally, while playing with matches with three other children at her parents' residence, 1720 North Eleventh street, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Spelding, was visiting a neighbor when she heard the cries of the children playing with Margaret.

The girl's dress was burned from her body, and physicians at the city hospital, where she was taken, said her condition was critical.

SAN ANTONIO TO BE MADE FIRST ARMY AERO CENTER

Will Be Headquarters for Eight Machines, 20 Officers and 90 Enlisted Men.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The signal corps of the army, under the direction of Brigadier-General Scriven, chief signal officer, is perfecting plans for the establishment of an aero center at San Antonio by June 1. It will be located on the Government reservation, which includes Fort Sam Houston, and will be headquarters for the first aeroplane squadron. When fully organized this squadron will comprise eight aeroplanes, 20 officers and about 90 enlisted men from which aviators will be drawn for any service which the War Department may require.

The training school for army aviators will be continued at San Diego, Cal., but the experienced fliers will make their headquarters at San Antonio. It is expected that a commission authorized at the last session of Congress will recommend the acquisition of a permanent school site in the vicinity of San Diego. The present school occupies leased property.

CITY EMPLOYE IS ACCUSED OF USING TIME TO AID I. V. L.

Councilman Fletcher to Ask for Investigation of Acts of Plan Commission Clerk.

DENIAL OF CHARGE MADE

Alleged to Have Been Decoyed to Postoffice, Where He Got Mail for League.

Councilman Fletcher at this afternoon's Council meeting will sponsor a resolution to investigate the alleged activity of a city employe during business hours as director of the political campaign being conducted by the elusive "Independent Voters' League," which urges in sample ballots and other literature that opposition be shown toward dertain candidates because of their religious convictions or inclinations.

Fletcher had a controversy yesterday with an employe of the City Plan Commission, whom he charged with circulating such literature under an alias, "H. F. Green." The employe said Fletcher called him on the telephone and made the accusation, threatening to ask for a Council investigation of his conduct.

Employe Denies Activities.

To a reporter, the employe denied having ever been connected with the Independent Voters League or any similar organization or movement.

"Dr. Fletcher is working on the wrong man," he said. "I do not care whether or not he investigates me, he will find that I have done nothing wrong."

Fletcher told a reporter that when he charged the City Plan Commission employe with having rented a lock box at the postoffice in a previous campaign and received mail in it addressed to the Independent Voters League, the employe retorted, "I will be taken care of by those behind me."

Fletcher was moved to investigate the alleged activity of city employes in the I. V. L. by the presentation of documentary evidence combined with the testimony of those who say they kept one employe under surveillance while he visited the postoffice and got the mail that had been sent to him as a trap. The same envelopes that were sent were recovered when the city employe carelessly tossed thm into the gutter.

The evidence collected by a committee of investigators was laid before Dr. Fletcher at his home, 3356 Russell avenue, one night this week, he said, and it convinced him that taxpayers were employing a man who spent part of his official time in campaigning against some of those taxpayers because of their religious belief.

Fletcher Offers Proof.

"If the Council decides to investigate this case I will be able to produce the evidence that was submitted to me in substantiation of the charges," said Dr. Flettcher. "There is no missing link in the chain of evidence, and it can be proved positively that the clerk in question is guilty of the charge."

Fletcher made a speech at the Council meeting Tuesday afternoon, in which he denounced the persons behind the Independent Voters League for attacking political candidates on religious grounds.

GEN. RUSSKY, WHO CAPTURED LEMBERG, RETIRES FROM ARMY

Russian Officer Has Been Suffering From Cancer; Recently Honored by Czar.

LONDON, April 2.—A Petrograd dispatch to the Morning Post says:

"The retirement from active service of one of Russia's most distinguished commanders, Gen. Russky, is announced.

"Gen. Russky, who made his mark early in the war by taking Lemberg and defeating the combined Austro-German armies, was lately responsible for the recent Russian success at Przasnysz. The Emperor's unusually warm-worded rescript and appointment of Gen. Russky as a member of the Upper House, indicate the honor in which the General is held.

"Ill health is the sole cause of his retirement, which ought to have taken place long ago, but Russky held on as long as he felt he was able. For a long time Gen. Russky has been suffering from cancer."

Order in Rival Italian Camps.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 2.—Gov. Dunne was advised last night by John M. Picco, Italian Consular Agent in this city, that the reported trouble between rival camps of Italians at Marion, Ill., had been greatly exaggerated. According to Picco, one Italian had been slain, but no further trouble was feared.

Liner Followed by Submarines.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Three German submarines were sighted off the Hook of Holland by the Holland-American liner Potsdam, which arrived here yesterday. The underwater craft followed the ship for a short distance, without attempting to stop her, and then branched off in different directions.

NEW WOMEN'S PEACE UNION

Founded in Geneva by Mrs. Clara G. Cocke of New Orleans.

LONDON, April 2.—A Geneva (Switzerland) dispatch to the Daily Chronicle reports:

"An American lady, Mrs. Clara Guthrie Cocke of New Orleans, daughter of the late Judge E. J. Merrick, Chief Justice of Louisiana, has founded in Geneva the World Union of Women, which is receiving support and members from all parts of the world. Its object seems to be to work for peace through love and the prospectus says: 'We shall strive for the education of women and the consequent advancement of humanity in the belief that women were created to love and not hate. We engage to devote ourselves to increase this love in the world.'

"Among the members eight nations are represented, including America, England, Germany and France. Mrs. Cocke has been elected the first president of the Union."

FAKE ROBBERY TRICK WINS AGAIN

Missourian Shows Strangers $80 to Prove Innocence; Gets $1 Back.

Confidence men yesterday fleeced John Demovitsch of Pittsburg out of $40 by accusing him of being a pickpocket and last night they found another victim in the same way in Conrad Pekiera of Desloge, Mo., who was strolling along Nineteenth street with one stranger when a second approached them and said he had been robbed. He said he suspected Pekiera and the latter at the suggestion of his companion took $80 from his pocket and displayed it for the benefit of the man who said he had been robbed.

The latter examined it and pretended to hand it back, but gave Pekiera a $1 bill wrapped about some newspaper clippings.

MESSENGER BOY HURT BY AUTO

Lad Knocked Down and Skull Probably Is Fractured.

Frank Kawiathowski, 15 years old, of 941 Harlan avenue, a messenger for the Western Union Telegraph Co., was knocked down by an auto at 8 o'clock this morning when crossing Locust street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. The machine, owned by William Dittman of 3463 Longfellow boulevard, was driven by Mikely Teky.

Teky took the boy to the city dispensary, where it was said his skull probably was fractured. A policeman who saw the accident said the driver was not going over eight miles an hour and that the messenger was trying to dodge another auto.

CANADIAN OFFICER AT FRONT TELLS OF 'BUSINESS OF WAR'

"Superbly Fit" British Army Spread Out Like Fan on Thirty-Mile Front.

SPIRIT OF MEN BUOYANT

Force Declared to Be Healthier Than Any That Ever Has Faced War.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 2.—How the British army operations in Belgium and Northern France are directed and many details of the activities of the troops on and behind the firing line are described in the second installment of Sir Max Aitken's report of his visit to the British lines received by the Government cable last night.

"The Business of War," is the caption under which the Canadian record officer writes from Canadian divisional headquarters in Flanders. He describes the army in the field as spread out like a fan, with the wavy edge of the line in the firing trenches, the support some hundreds of yards behind and further back, along the ribs of the fan, the various headquarters—of brigade, of divisions, of army corps and of armies, "until at the end of the fan one reaches the general headquarters, where the Field Marshal, Sir John French, stands with his hand on the dynamo, which sends its impulses through every part of the great machine spread out in front."

Troops "Superbly Fit."

The record officer describes the "signals branch" nearby, which with its wires and dispatch riders, is the means of communication with every part of the field; the intelligence branch, "which collects and communicates information about the enemy from every source it can tap," for one thing interrogating prisoners and comparing statements made by them, and the adjutant generals, quartermaster generals and medical service department grouped in the vicinity.

"As one goes forward from General Headquarters toward the edge of the fan," continues the narrator, "one comes in contact with more and more men; and realizes quickly that, in spite of months of trench warfare, our troops are superbly fit and ready for any task which the coming advance may impose on them. Their physical condition is so robust as to be astonishing. The complete efficiency of the men is backed by the fact that they are well fed, and the army is healthier than any other army that has ever faced war, and typhoid is almost unknown. This amazing record of health is due to the sanitary precautions that are taken. One of the most remarkable of these is the system of hot baths, and the sterilizing of clothing.

"Bathing establishments have been put in various parts of the field. I visited the largest of them. It is in a building which, before the war, was a jute factory. Every succeeding hour of the day a whole company of men have hot baths here. They strip to the skin, and while they wallow in huge vats of hot water, their underclothing is treated with 220 degrees of steam."

The record officer commends the system of billeting the men within easy reach of the firing line, specially arranged wooden huts having been put up recently to supplement the dwellings in the small towns and villages where the men were first quartered. He found the army in fine spirits, he said, with many games of football in progress, and the men enjoying the privileges of devouring news from home that is distributed in letters that average one a day for every man in the field.

British Hold 30-Mile Front.

"No army in the world ever got so much news from home so regularly and so quickly," he declared. Of the life further toward the front, he says: "The British forces hold a front between 20 and 30 miles long, running from Ypres on the north, where the Seventh Division made its heroic stand against the Prussian Guards, to Civenchy, on the south, near the scene of the recent victory at Neuve Chapelle.

"This stretch has been held ever since the British troops made their swift, unexpected dash from the heights of the Aisne in Belgian Flanders into this low-lying Flemish land of mud and water, where they dug themselves in as they arrived, and here they have held their ground. They have lived and fought in seas of mud. The water has been pumped out of the trenches with hand pumps, only to ooze back again through the sodden soil. Plank platforms have been put down and straw has been piled in. Yet the mud smothered everything. The men stood in mud, sat in mud and lay in mud. They had to hide in the mud of the trenches to escape the German bullets. It was a choice of mud or death.

Ground Beginning to Dry.

"Recently conditions have improved. There has been less rain and the winds have begun to dry the ground. The trench mud is becoming firmer. With the change of weather the spirits of the men, always doggedly cheerful, under the vilest conditions of winter sleet, snow and slush, have become quite buoyant, and a happier, more efficient and more confident army never stood in boots.

"The line of trenches is nearly everywhere down on the low lying ground intersected with watery ditches and small streams. The land is so level and the atmosphere is so heavy that it is difficult as a rule to see even as far as a rifle bullet will carry. The nearer you approach the firing line the more difficult you find it to set eyes on men. Thousands of men are almost within hailing distance, but no men are to be seen. Friend and foe are hidden in the trenches."

FIVE NAVY DIVERS LEAVE FOR HONOLULU TO HELP SOLVE F4

NEW YORK, April 2.—Five Navy Department divers left the navy yard here early today for Honolulu to aid in raising the lost submarine F4. The party was headed by George D. Stillson, chief gunner's mate. The others were Frank Crilley, Fredolin C. C. Nielson, Stephen J. Drellishak and William F. Loughman, all gunners' mates. Stillson is said to be one of the most expert divers in the world and Drellishak holds the world's record for depth in diving. An air lock in which to place them after their return to the surface after a deep dive was among the equipment they carried.

"I may come home in a wooden kimona," said Drellishak, "but I will stick it out to the end."

Frost Damages Strawberries.

SHH! LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN YOUR FADED GRAY HAIR—USE SAGE TEA

Sage Tea Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Luster to Hair—Just Comb or Brush It in the Hair.

Why suffer the handicap of looking old. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Soge Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use; but listen, avoid preparations put up by druggists, as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky. Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and even—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.—ADV.

PRESIDENT QUOTED BY MISTAKE, SAYS FRENCH DIPLOMAT

Interview in Paris Temps on Neutrality "Absolute Misunderstanding," Ambassador Asserts.

WHITE HOUSE STATEMENT

Newspaperman's Call Upon Executive Thought to Have Been Purely of Social Nature.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador, informed the White House today that there had been "an absolute misunderstanding" in connection with the publication by Gabriel Alphaud, secretaire-general of the Paris Temps, of a quoted interview with President Wilson on European and Mexican affairs.

Alphaud was introduced to President Wilson Wednesday by the French Ambassador. At the White House last night it was stated that what had been published was unauthorized and that the President had given no interview for publication. It was stated that the President had understood in advance that Alphaud's visit was to be purely a social call.

The statement also was authorized at the White House that President Wilson had sent no letter recently to President Poincare, as suggested by Alphaud, but that the letter to which reference was made was sent several months ago by President Wilson as a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, in reply to one of President Poincare of the French Academy brought to this country in person by Emile Brieux, the French playwright. The letter was made public at the time. White House officials recalled, and contained only felicitations of a general character.

TEMPS' INTERVIEW WITH PRESIDENT

Mr. Wilson Said to Have Discussed Neutrality With Paris Newspaper Man.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, April 2.—Gabriel Alphaud, secretaire general of the Temps, who was introduced to President Wilson at the White House, Wednesday, by the French Ambassador at Washington, has sent to the Temps an interview, which, he says, he had with the President.

"I am glad to see on American soil," President Wilson is quoted as having said, "Frenchmen, who come to satisfy themselves as to the state of opinion in the United States. You will not receive any impression, I am sure, that will give you cause reasonably to complain of that opinion.

"Definite questions are at times considered by France or others of the belligerent countries as proof that the American Government favors sometimes one and sometimes the others of the combatants. The two groups of belligerent nations complain of the attitude of the American Government in equally vigorous terms. Each time one of these cases arises, is it not proof that the Government of the United States is conscientiously observing the rules of neutrality?

"The Germans or the allies may at times find that we are exacting—that the American Government sticks too closely to these rules. The war will not last forever. When it is finished, such or such a nation will perhaps be glad that we have maintained the rules against which she protests today.

"France will avoid the error of believing what individuals of the peoples in the conflict often think—that is that he who is not actively for them is against them. As to my own sentiments regarding France, I addressed a letter to the President of the French republic that expresses them clearly. Be sure that I do not think anything less than what that letter says."

Alphaud says he asked President Wilson if the contemplated increase in the American army and navy had any precise object and that the President replied:

"No, augmentation has been retarded rather than hurried by current events. We desire to avoid false interpretations."

Asked if an early end of the Mexican trouble could be hoped for, President Wilson is reported to have said:

"It is indeed difficult to reply. A favorable symptom appears, however, in the last indications received here. They show a better disposition on the part of the principal Mexican chiefs to understand why they have to respect the lives and interests of foreigners. Nothing shall be neglected by the American Government to accentuate these tendencies."

The letter referred to by Alphaud, it is understood, was delivered three weeks ago to President Poincare by Col. Edward M. House, who is in Europe observing conditions. The letter, it is said, was read to the French Cabinet, upon the members of which it made an agreeable impression.

500 Men, 65 Feet Below Streets, Build Big Sewer

Drilling, Blasting and Cutting Through the Solid Rock Go on Througout the Night and the Day.

Drilling, blasting and cutting their way through solid rock at an average depth of 65 feet below the streets of St. Louis, 500 men are at work night and day on a tunnel which, when finished in the fall of 1916, will be four miles long, almost wide enough to run two street cars through abreast, and will cost the city approximately $3,000,000. This is the new Mill Creek storm sewer, built to relieve the present Mill Creek sewer in time of heavy rains.

Work on the project has been going on since the middle of October, and up to this time there have already been 6000 feet of tunnel hollowed out of the solid rock, in addition to 500 feet of sewer completed in what is called the open cut, between Broadway and the river. There will be no tunneling necessary in this section. The reinforced concrete tube will be laid after the excavation of a trough of the proper size.

There are 2200 feet of the open cut work, in all, and 17,800 feet of the tunnel, making a total length of 20,000 feet, almost four miles. Nine-tenths of the tunneling is through rock.

Reporter Explores Tunnel.

A Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday explored two of the eight sections of the tunnel, entering by the shafts at Twelfth and Hickory, and at Sixth and Rutger streets.

The descent down any of the eight shafts, which mark the various sections of the sewer, is made by means of a steam-operated lift, on which the cars of mud and broken stone are brought to the surface. Being lowered into one of these shafts, several of which are 90 feet deep, is like the descent into a coal mine. One drops from the noise of the street to a damp gloomy cavern 90 feet below, lit only by incandescent lamps at intervals of 20 or 25 yards, but noisy with the roar of machinery, the grinding of the drills and the shouts of the mud-bespattered men at their work. And all the while, there is the constant drip of the seepage water from the rock overhead covering the tunnel floor to a depth of from three to six inches.

The walls, the floor and the vault are of rough rock and down the center of the passage runs a double narrow gauge railroad system, along which, at intervals, a tired and muddy donkey splashes on his way to the shaft with a car of broken rock in tow. Running along the walls of the passage, the longest of which is at present 700 feet, is a pipe line about 10 inches in diameter through which a constant flow of air is forced to the workers at the far end of the tube, creating a regular circulation of air through the tunnel to the entrance shaft and keeping the passage almost perfectly ventilated. A gutter also follows the wall, in which the seepage water is carried off to a well at the shaft, from which it is pumped into nearby sewers.

Sewer to Be 16 Feet Wide.

It is the plan of the contractors in charge of the work to hollow out the passage from the rock for its entire length before any of the interior concrete finish is applied. The inside of the sewer, when finished, will be in the shape of a horse shoe with a slightly curved bottom, and will be 16½ feet across and in height. The present passage that is being blasted out, however is about 19 feet high and wide.

Four "shots" are fired in each 24 hours' blasting, each shot, which is distributed among 24 holes drilled in the rock at the end of the tunnel, requiring 72 pounds of dynamite. These charges are set off in three separate explosions, which together remove a section of rock 8 by 13 feet and 5 feet deep. All workmen leave the tunnel at the time of firing as a matter of precaution, as the rock is often hurled as far as 50 feet. Due to the proximity of civilization, however, these charges are only half as heavy as the ones usually used in tunneling.

The reporter, while talking to the city engineer who acted as his guide through the work, discovered that the shaking of the houses and the breaking of the windows that have caused so many complaints from the residents in the neighborhood of Sixth and Rutger streets and elsewhere along the course of the sewer, have not been the result of the rocking of the earth by the blasts of dynamite fired underground, as is generally supposed. They have been caused, instead, by air pressure. The shock of the explosion in the underground passage suddenly compresses the air in the tunnel and forces it out the shafts with such force that windows in the neighborhood are blown in and walls of adjoining buildings shaken. These disturbances are noticeable only in the vicinity of the shaft openings, and as the tunnel grows longer the air pressure at the openings grows less.

Terminus at Vandeventer.

The floor of the sewer is on the same level for the entire 20,000 feet, no slope being allowed to aid the drainage as is customary in the ordinary sewer. This is on account of its being a storm sewer, carrying no foul water, the pressure of the water in the shafts at the end of the tunnel in time of heavy rains being enough to force the flow.

The western terminus of the work is at Vandeventer and Duncan avenues, from whence it runs east through a right of way to Spring avenue, south under Spring to Chouteau avenue, east to Theresa street, south to Rutger street, east to Jefferson avenue, north to Hickory street, east to Ninth street, south to Rutger again, and thence east to the river. The greatest depth of the flow line is at Grand and Chouteau avenues, where it is 130 feet below street level.

The work has progressed so far without any fatalities, despite the large number of men employed and the hazardous conditions under which they work.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Sewer Excavators Find Hull of River Packet Buried in the Mud

WORKMEN tunneling and excavating for the new Mill Creek sewer have brought to light a number of interesting relics of old St. Louis.

Yesterday, while tunneling at Twelfth and Hickory, 87 feet below the street, a blade of an old scythe was found in a mud seam between two layers of rock. The foreman in charge of the work there advanced the theory that it had been dropped in the old Chouteau pond and had gradually worked its way down to where it was found.

Distinct traces of an old levee were found about 150 feet west of the present shore line of the river in the open cut work east of Broadway at Rutger, and even a little further west the hull of an old river packet was unearthed in 25 feet of mud.

Pioneers Misunderstood.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In Jack London's "Iron Heel" you will remember the fate of Bishop Morehouse, who, when he had been shown the misery and suffering of the underworld, vainly endeavored to alleviate those conditions, and his subsequent fate at the hands of the moneyed powers. It is the old, old story repeated every day.

When advanced minds revolt and attempt to turn the white light of Truth upon the Gods of Greed and to better the world in a practical way, their existence is short lived. Two recent examples bear me out. I refer to the Rev. Wm. Short of Boston, who last week was removed by Bishop Lawrence for preaching a series of sermons on the "Social Revolution," and of Rev. L. M. Birkhead, whose views have become too broad for his erstwhile congregation.

A cursory glance at general history will show it was the strongest and most courageous souls who came first and blazed the trail of knowledge and freedom for the weaker generations who followed. They were the pioneers and usually the martyrs of every cause they espoused, first condemned and later honored. They are far-seeing and self sacrificing, deserving of a better reward than the world's ungrateful criticism. Their names will remain emblazoned upon the hero rolls of history long after their traducers have sunk to the bottomless pits of oblivion, the capitalist powers to the contrary, notwithstanding.

T. C. RANKLIN.

Make Back Yards Attractive.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We have great numbers of beautiful back yards in St. Louis, most of them closely concealed by high plank walls. If these ugly walls were torn away, as has been done in Baltimore, these continuous park-like strips would add greatly to the beauty of our city. If a fence is desired, one light wire would define and protect, leaving the view unobscured.

S. W. HEARD.

Religious Faith as a Political Club.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have admired the sturdy independence of the Post-Dispatch in many a hard-fought political campaign of the past and especially commend you for your editorial in the issue of March 24, regarding the injection of religion into politics. The scurrilous literature issued by the so-called Independent Voters' League should receive the severest condemnation from all right-thinking Americans—especialy Protestants. In view of the antagonistic feeling existing among most people against the tactics of that league, it is surprising that the Republican candidate from the Thirteenth Ward, Taylor B. Wyrick, should openly use an indorsement of that organization in his advertisement in the Post-Dispatch of March 11. Personally, I am of no religion and it is extremely distasteful to have this question drawn into an election where it has no place.

W. C. W.

The Anti-Narcotic Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Why should the party who signed, "A. K. McNally," insinuate that the Federal drug act was created for the sole purpose of physicians who desired to earn extra compensation by writing new prescriptions?

He shows that he is not conversant with conditions or facts pertaining to the drug act. Can it be because he is a "coke-head" that it is working a hardship upon him; or does he desire to discredit the good of the act, which has brought forth much laudatory comment from the press?

Does he seek sympathy in his misfortune or publicity as a demagogue?

DAMNANT QUOD NON INTELLIGENT.

Park Commissioner and Landscape Architect.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Some combinations are objectionable. Many are advantageous. One proposed combination has my hearty approval. It obviously is in the interests of all the people. I refer to the contemplated consolidation of the offices of Park Commissioner and Landscape Architect, at one instead of two salaries.

As a matter of fact that combination will not throw anybody out of a job. We have no landscape architect at present because the city cannot afford one.

The new plan will give the city a landscape architect without increase of cost. The plan will benefit not only St. Louisans who pay taxes, but all other St. Louisans, for all at least indirectly share the burden of taxation and all are directly concerned in the city's parks which cannot have any attention from a landscape architect until the city treasury recuperates, unless the Director of Public Welfare effects this combination by signly appointing as successor to Dwight [illegible] architect.

H. D. IRISH.

A PARK COMMISSIONER PORTRAIT.

It is gratifying to learn from Mr. Tolkacz, Director of Public Welfare, that he will appoint to the Park Commissionership the best available man he can find, regardless of political influences or personal inducements.

Mr. Tolkacz offers an acceptable definition of the kind of man wanted. He says he wants a man who has given thought to the sociological problems involved in public recreations; who has keen personal interest in and a knowledge of sports and athletic training; who knows something about landscape gardening, road building and has executive ability. He must be able to supply the greatest park benefits to the largest possible percentage of the population.

We indulge and hope that we shall be able to recognise the next Park Commissioner by this word portrait. A man with capacity to develop into this kind of a Park Commissioner and desires to serve the people will be satisfactory. Nothing less will.

It is vitally important that capable, competent, intelligent men devoted to public service be selected for heads of departments in the reorganized city government. If the efficiency system is to mean anything it must be applied to all appointed—from the highest to the lowest—the administration heads, as well as the subordinates. Efficiency and devotion to public service higher up is a guarantee of similar qualities lower down. No department will be much better than its head.

The people are watching municipal appointments this spring as they never did before.

OUR OWN UMBRELLA.

"A great cloud of smoke, shaped like an umbrella, was seen to rise in the air above East Alton."

Thus a reporter graphically depicts the explosion of a powder mill in the Illinois suburb. The umbrella in question is so much like ours that we came near mistaking it—the old familiar smoke umbrella so frequently hoisted over St. Louis.

"Umbrella"—shade contrivance—is at once the most poetic and the aptest term ever applied to the obscuration. It would be a joyous thing if St. Louis could carelessly leave its old umbrel around where some ambitious little town would borrow it and never return it.

THE KUHS CHAIN COMPLETE.

The ledgers of the Lafayette Bank, in which the $84,000 received by J. M. Sheppard for the high school site he sold the Board of Education was deposited, show that a considerable proportion of the $11,500 profit in the deal was credited to the account of the Opportunity Realty and Investment Co., owned by Kuhs, the younger.

On March 10 the account of the Opportunity company was depleted to the extent of $4626.22. On the same day it is said that the account of A. H. Kuhs & Son, largely owned by Kuhs the elder, a member of the Board of Education, was credited with exactly $4626.22.

The chain seems to be complete. The city must take no further chances on discussions of School Board secrets between the elder Kuhs and his son, conducted in such a loud voice that other occupants of the office, though suffering, as Sheppard was, from an infirmity of deafness, can overhear them.

Mr. Kuhs should be removed from the board. Such other vigorous action should be taken in his case as the facts and the law warrant.

BRE'R RABBIT AND THE EGGS.

Uncle Remus knew how the Easter rabbit came by the Easter eggs, but it is a mystery to the rest of us, except the children, to whom nothing is really surprising, because all is magical.

Those pretty and clever-looking Easter bunnies in the Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine are evidently in the secret. Of course, a philosopher might say that both rabbit and egg represent Nature's abundance, especially her creative powers manifested in the spring season. But there is probably some deeper significance. For how comes it that the rabbits are decked in ribbons and the eggs are of all colors of the rainbow? And why are rabbits, not hens, looking after these wonderful eggs?

Better ask the children. They may know more about it than we do. And their answers might be very interesting.

THE ROYAL WATER WAGON.

The water wagon of George V is no doubt a large gilded vehicle with many decorative effects. Probably, like the British railroad cars, it has first, second and third class compartments to accommodate the different grades of officials and citizens who will now want to get on because the King is on. But it serves the same public utility purposes of the lumbering springless old conveyance on which so many Americans are riding.

The water wagon in this country, in fact, has discarded the familiar team of speckled horses, adopted gasoline propulsion and is making a joy ride speed record. Five months ago there were nine prohibition states. Now there are 19, with a prospect that two or three more will be added before Legislatures now in session adjourn.

The Turks smile a superior smile at the efforts against alcoholic drink by other races, especially by those at war. They prohibited alcohol by religious commandment centuries ago and in the first few generations thereafter overran a good share of the world.

RECOGNITION FOR HEROIC CHILDREN.

The youth of many of the persons to whom Carnegie awards for heroism were made during the year ending Jan. 31, last, is a point from which the spirit and training of the young people of the United States may be judged.

Of 144 whose self-sacrificing effort earned for themselves or their surviving relatives medals and substantial sums of money, 44 were 21 years of age or less. Two were only 11 years old. Four, including one girl, were 12. Six, including three girls, were 14. Twenty-two were 16 years old or less. The awards for Missouri are as follows:

Foreman Patrick Moriarity, 53, manhole suffocation accident, St. Louis, medal and $25 a month pension for widow and $10 for children; James D. Prater, 25, suffocation accident at Tiff City; Brakeman Edward Bruce, 33, saving a woman from a train at Pacific.

In an attempted rescue from drowning Frederick W. Lee lost his life at Ingram; other rescue effort when the peril was drowning was made by R. Herman Weaks, Canalou; Lola E. Haven, 12, and Paul J. Keith, 13, Centerville; Austin E. Fitch, 24, Deicke; Guy W. Henson, 17, Joplin; Robert Galbraith, 14, Noel.

Missourians are proud of the 10, especially of those of tender years. Three silver and seven bronze medals were given Missourians and $12,500 in cash, in addition to the Moriarity pensions.

EXPORTS VIA NEW ORLEANS.

A consignment of 200 tons of baking powder was sent by barge from East St. Louis destined for territory adjacent to lower river ports—a shipment that ought to be a part of the daily business routine, but under existing circumstances unusual enough to have significance.

Gov. Dunne is continuing encouraging effort for breaking the deadlock over channel improvement from the end of the Chicago drainage canal to the Mississippi.

As a part of its new river terminal system, Davenport, Io., has projected a great warehouse in which the products of Iowa and adjacent territory will be assembled preparatory to sending them down the river for export via New Orleans.

In the current news indicating use on an enlarged scale of river opportunities, the report as to Davenport has the greatest immediate promise. That the plans may take shape with the least possible delay, an urgent message was sent asking the magnitude of New Orleans' export trade and its facilities for handling an expanded volume of business. The 2000-word reply wired back was of a nature to satisfy inquiry on that point.

To send foodstuffs and other products down the river for export from New Orleans at less cost than the rail charges to Atlantic ports is, of course, entirely practical. Vast quantities of wheat and other commodities formerly took this route at a time when river conditions were less advantageous than now.

Every self-propelling barge loaded for export at Davenport will pass by St. Louis. The levee improvement that will equip this city also as an assembling point is a matter for the present, not the indefinite future. Plans should be well under way by the time the city gains control of the levee railroad on the franchise's expiration in December.

ONE BAN LIFTED.

It is still a crime to own or circulate in India Bryan's fiery indictment of British misrule there, but since Bryan entered Wilson's Cabinet it has ceased to be a crime for a Filipino to own or circulate a copy of the Declaration of Independence in our Asiatic dependency.

GERMANY AND THE FALABA.

Having conducted a costly and strenuous campaign to justify in world opinion Germany's part in bringing on the war, the Belgian invasion, the air and sea assaults on unfortified cities and the submarine war zone, with its threat against the lives and property of neutrals, Germany must now meet a flood of condemnation on account of the Falaba, in which passengers and crew on a merchant liner were ruthlessly sent to the bottom by a submarine torpedo.

It is not too much to say that press comments on this horror equal, at least, in vigor of denunciation, those printed concerning Belgium. The destruction of a passenger ship without mercy for either passengers or crew, linked with the drowning of many merchant crews, is denounced as one of the worst of crimes.

Poor Germany! Her leaders must be blind, indeed, not to see that the inevitable effect of the "policy of ruthlessness" enforced against noncombatants and neutrals as well as combatants is alienating world sympathy. Nations can afford to be beaten in honorable warfare. Nations have, with the moral support of others, risen to greatness from the ashes of defeat. But no nation can afford to offend the moral sense and humane sentiment of mankind. No nation is strong enough to survive on might alone. Leaders of a nation who ignore "decent respect for the opinions of mankind" lead it ultimately to disaster—to a day of reckoning when it appeals for sympathy and support in vain.

The German people, great in mind and heart, should grasp and understand this situation.

LOOKING UP ONE'S SELF.

St. Louis must be duly sensible of the compliment paid it by a brainy mathematician who lost or mislaid his identity somewhere and came here looking himself up. He has asked the police to help, and in our own humble way we also joined the personally conducted search party. We rejoice in its prompt success.

It was neither a case for the village bloodhounds nor a trail upon which to set a pack of trained squirrels, since the gentleman was entirely convincing in his quiet but firm assertion that he was not a "nut," pardoning the vernacular into which the Bard of Avon set the fashion of dropping. On the contrary the searcher is a brilliant man—only his mind was so full of algebra that he couldn't remember his own initials. To himself he was the unknown quantity X, and for all he knew he was X+2 or +3 or plus a still larger family, and he didn't know where they resided. But he felt like X——, and might have been only a bachelor.

We repeat, it is a flattering tribute he paid to our cosmopolitan and cultured center when he comes here to look for himself instead of to Heidelberg, New Haven or Chicago. Wouldn't the latter, or Kansas City, for instance, feel tremendously set up if ever an intellectual genius suspected himself of having strayed there? Passing that point, it is rather with admiration and sympathy for the man than with unctuous home pride that the spectacle fills us. Intimate moral applications force themselves.

A man filled with his work to self-forgetfulness, completely lost in goodly endeavor, is pathetic from one angle of vision, and altogether heroic from another. Such nobility is one of the world's chief benefactions. Likewise the thrilling example of a lost man trying to find himself has the broadest human appeal; for how many men, in greater or less degree, are engaged in similar attempts.

"Know thyself." Few of us pretend to enjoy the privilege—if such it is. Many of us are not even on speaking terms with ourselves. Patient Peruser, do you think you know yourself by sight, as others might identify you, and would you recognize a faithful description of your own character?

SONG OF THE SOUTHWIND.

I.

I AM the Southwind, that with love caresses
The barren meadow and the bleak, brown hill,
Giving them warmth that in its coming blesses
All things soever that are dead and chill.
The wild rose blooming in secluded places,
The glad spring flowers in their bright array—
I am the Southwind, come from tropic spaces,
Bringing the sweet rain and the bloom of May.

II.

BORNE on my breath are perfumed recollections
Of fairy islands in the Southern seas,
There where the winds are blest with sweet confections,
The flowered forests and the drone of bees.
The thrush at twilight with its song outringing,
The swift, fresh waters and the lovers' moon—
I am the Southwind, up the wide sky singing,
Bringing the green fields and the charms of June.

III.

I AM that bitter foe of Cold's dominion
That gives the world again its tender dreams,
And brings the meadowlark of golden pinion
Back to its fairyland of fields and streams.
The stars of summer in their beauty lighting
The mystic heavens over land and sea—
I am the Southwind, love with love requiting,
Bringing the promise of the time to be.

HOGWALLOW LOCALS.

Isaac Hellwanger has issued orders around his place that there is to be no noise of any kind for several days as one of his geese is on the nest.

The Hogwallow Improvement Association meets next week, and will no doubt have a long session, as there is nothing of importance to come up. All winter they have been working on some ways and means to try to get rid of the mud hole in front of the postoffice, but have laid the matter on the table, deciding to let nature take its course.

With the advent of the garden seed and onion sets, the Postmaster has slowed his stove down to about half horsepower.

Raz Barlow, who is about one-third Irish, acted green at Tickville on St. Patrick's day.

Hereafter, all who have their shoes half-soled by Luke Mathewsla will have to remove them from their feet while the work is going on.

The Mail Carrier got in today very tired, as he had several long letters to bring.

Raz Barlow now passes Miss Fruzie Allsop's house with his head turned the other way, thinking about some other girl.

Sidney Hocks has got a job of working at night and has purchased two lanterns, which insures him a bright future.

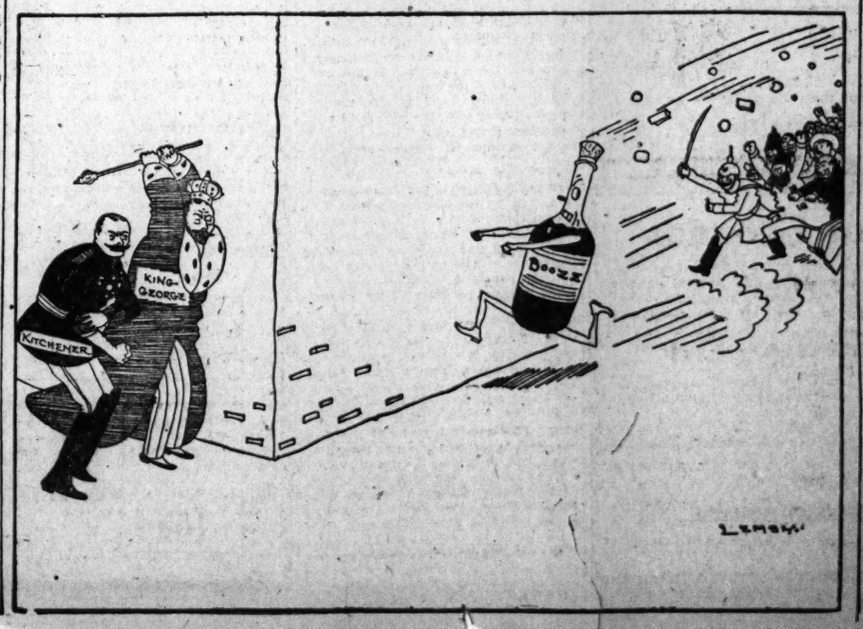

One of the wheels on the Tin Peddler's wagon broke down while he was trying to sell Mrs. Columbus Allsop a dishpan for half price last Thursday.

The hive of bees owned by Tobe Moseley are starting out with renewed energy, after a winter's rest. However, Tobe, himself has not decided yet just what he will do this coming summer.

Washington Hocks has gone on a trip to Thunderation, in the Calf Ribs neighborhood. He would have gone to Bounding Billows but his mule got contrary and turned off at the wrong road.

Walter Joseph de Laney.

all days!" sighed broke, manager of arian bookshop of rward to this day n the calendar—as en he was to ask d-headed employer s daughter, Jessie, in secret ever since resent position and ourted for the past ad been away for g a famous private nt wished to buy. full charge of the had been good and It and had counted on his report placing his gruff, practical-minded employer in good humor. Then he intended to tell him outright that Jessie and himself were engaged.

Late the evening previous, however, John had received a note from Jessie that disturbed him and completely discouraged all his ambitious plans. It ran:

"I don't know why, but papa is in a dreadful temper. It is something about the old Spectator set of books you bought."

And now John worried and chilled, tried to guess out where he could possibly have been wrong in the purchase in question as he was summoned to the private office of his employer.

Mr. Abercrombie's brow was like a thundercloud. He had the Spectator set in question on his desk. As John entered he pointed at the volumes with an angry stabbing finger.

"You bought that trash, I understand?" he growled out.

"Why, yes, sir," admitted John.

"And paid $600 for it?"

"That was the price, sir."

"Well, you have been swindled. The set is a copy—a rank forgery. To an old expert like myself, such a barefaced imposition seems impossible. I have just this to say: the set would not sell for $10 and I shall expect you to make up my money you have so recklessly squandered."

John Talks With Jessie.

JOHN'S heart sank fast and deep. He knew that discussion was useless. Six hundred dollars! Why, even if the old man favored his suit concerning Jessie, that would put off all idea of a speedy wedding.

"I beg to say"— began John, but the old tyrant waved all explanations aside.

John could have reminded him that a standing order had been with the house for the very set in question. The books looked genuine. John had even submitted them to a very good authority. The dictum of his employer, however, was final.

"It should be a lesson to you," observed the old man gruffly. "It would be a very wise and shrewd man who could play such a swindling trick on me!"

John had a hasty talk with Jessie, who decided that the momentous question at issue should be postponed until the $600 was made up.

So, John showed no sullenness or resentment to the arbitrary ultimatum of his hard-headed employer, but went cheerfully about his duties as usual, willing to abide a better condition of affairs.

One day there came into the book shop a veritable old fossil, so far as long, straggly white beard and old-fashioned goggles and clothes were concerned. When he announced himself as the president of a newly instituted college in a far-away town, the bookseller never doubted his word, for he looked the antinquated pedagogue complete.

He gave his name as Prof. Marsh and stated the college trustees had set apart $5000 to buy a library. For a week he inspected the shelves of the book store and its catalogues, writing down a list of innumerable volumes and their prices, and old Abercrombie rubbed his hands quite jovially at the prospects of making a big sale with broad profits.

Several times the old professor had spoken of a set of books representing the works of an obscure and well-nigh forgotten German savant. These covered some abstruse psychological ideals, and had been a great favorite with him, he said, in his younger days.

The Books Are Bought.

"YOU might take a run around and see if you can find any trace of the set," Mr. Abercrombie suggested to John one day. "Prof. Marsh seems very eager for it and has offered $2000 if we can deliver the commission."

John went the rounds. The volumes were nowhere to be found, in fact very few booksellers had ever heard of them. One afternoon, however, he was met by the manager of a rival book house.

"I say, Pembroke," observed this individual. "I think I have located those books. In fact, I have found a man who has a complete set. If I direct you up against him, what is there in it for me?"

"Ten per cent."

"All right. I'll send the man to you."

He appeared the next day, a seedy, hungry-looking fellow, who suggested the actor on a forced vacation, or the average literary hack.

Mr. Abercrombie cast a look of vain pride at his manager as he "turned the fellow outside that," as he boasted chuckingly after the bargain was made, and beat the price down from $1500 to $1200.

"Follow my tactics," he observed to John. "Get your order before you buy, as I have done."

The owner of the set of rarities appeared the following morning in a cab. The volumes in question were unloaded, the man was paid his price.

Mr. Abercrombie turned up his nose at the books as he looked them over.

"A clear profit on a lot of old truck with no real value," he observed.

Prof. Marsh did not appear as usual that morning, nor in the afternoon. Mr. Abercrombie began to get uneasy, the next morning anxious. He sent John to the hotel where the erudite college president had been stopping.

"Gone, sir, left last night," reported John upon his return.

"You—you don't mean permanently?" questioned the bookseller, a quaver of suspicion in his voice.

"I do," replied John.

"Then"—

"I fear you are swindled, sir," reminded the young manager. "Prof. Marsh left here with a man precisely answering to the description of the person who sold us the books. It was a well put up game, I fear."

John Speaks for Himself.

MR. ABERCROMBIE looked bored more, humiliated. He put on his hat and went out to investigate. He was subdued and crestfallen when he returned. Jessie happened to be present when he returned.

The bookseller pottered around for a spell. Then he came up to Jessie and John, who were conversing casually.

"Ahem!" flustered the old n believe we will say no more abo money you invested some time In fact, we'll call that tran square."

"Why, thank you, sir," spoke Jo gratefully.

"And I would not let anyone of o rivals know how cleverly I wa duped."

"Indeed not, sir."

"And—I have eyes, and perhaps I am getting past my usefulness. A mistak like this! We had better discuss ou business mutually after this"—

Jessie was beaming. She nudged he lover. "Speak now!" she whispered. Then John proffered his request. Sure ly opportunity was knocking at his door and quite graciously old Abercrombi smiled upon the engaged pair an blessed them.

Wise Words of the Violet

Sandman story of how the wild flowers complain, only to be taught a lesson of courage by their modest sister.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONCE upon a time there was a beautiful garden filled with flowers. Every day they were tended and the weeds and stones taken out so that the roots of the flowers would grow and give forth blossoms and sweet perfume.

On the other side of the fence grew a wild rose bush and other wild flowers.

"Oh dear," sighed the wild rose one morning as she peeped through the fence and saw the gardener tending the flowers in the garden. "If we only had the care the flowers on the other side of the fence receive we should be as beautiful as they are."

"Yes, I am sure of that, Wild Rose," said a wild honeysuckle. "I am as sweet as any of the cultivated vines and yet no one thinks of admiring me."

A laurel bush lifted itself and said: "My color is as delicate as any of the flowers on the other side of the fence, yet who thinks of giving me water that I may grow more beautiful. If only we had a chance we would grow and be as beautiful as the cultivated flowers."

A modest little violet raised her head. "I really do not feel that I should speak to you, who are so far above me, in a reproving manner," she said timidly. "But did you ever stop to think how strong and brave we wild flowers are?

WHEN the storms come and the wind blows we bend and sway, but we do not break, and when the storm is over and the sun shines again who lifts up their heads to greet him and who feels the first warm rays he sends forth, the cultivated flowers or we who brave the storms and winds?

"Look at the garden on the other side of the fence after a storm. The gardener goes among the flowers and ties up the broken ones and picks from the ground all the storm-beaten flowers that will never bloom again. Sometimes the flowers he ties to a stick and tends carefully so they will have the courage to grow again, but not often. They do not know how to care for themselves as we do. We are the ones, my friends, that have courage to grow in uncultivated ground and without care. We are the ones that send forth the sweetest perfume and live through all weathers. Let us not complain that we do not receive the care and attention that our cousins on the other side receive, but be content to live and be strong, and each year come back to beautify the earth."

THE violet hung her head as though ashamed that she had dared to speak so long and hid under an overhanging leaf.

The tree under which the violet grew spoke then and said he was sure the violet was right and he hoped the flowers would remember what she had said.

"Why, look at me," he said, "here I am growing out of the side of a rock. I never have had any care from the gardener; I grew to be a tree in spite of all obstacles, and my shade is cooling and my leaves are as green as the leaves of the trees that the gardener helped to grow.

"Let us not complain, my friends. The ones who have the courage to grow and thrive in spite of oppression are the ones that make the world beautiful and their perfumes fill the land."

"Perhaps they are right," said the laurel; "we do not have to spring from seed each year. We sleep under the snow in the winter, and when the spring comes we throw off our white covering and spring into life. We should not be envious, after all; it is our cousins on the other side of the fence who should envy us."

The Census of Hell.

THE Rev. William A. Sunday recently taking a census of hell, reported he found among its population the following: Pharoah, Voltaire, Nebuchadnezzar, Huxley, Jezebel, John Stuart Mill, Nero, Tyndall, Judas, Thomas Paine, Attila, Ingersoll, Louis XIV, Rousseau, Louis XV, Ivan the Terrible, Mme. Pompadour, Catherine de Medici, Mme. de Montespan and Mme. de Maintenon.

It is wondered how he came to overlook the claims of Caligula, Stephen Girard, Napoleon, Dr. Channing and Alaric the Goth. And what of Cain?

But the subject is not altogether without its serious aspect. Such methods as this are nothing more than grist to the mill of the skeptic. Those Christians who are at all schooled in the faith may well plead to the jurisdiction of the court in this case. It can know nothing of the state of those whom it condemns to torment. But the worst of such judgments is that they show an utter lack of Christian temper. A good many years before Mr. Sunday was born, a great man and great poet dealt with the same theme thus:

Let not this weak, unknowing hand
Presume thy bolts to throw,
And deal damnation round the land,
On each I judge thy foe.

Teach me to feel another's woe,
To hide the fault I see;
That mercy I to others show,
That mercy show to me.

It is all very foolish, of course, and as wrong as it is foolish. The prayer of Alexander Pope should be the prayer of every Christian, especially when he is disposed—as fortunately few people are—to anticipate the decrees of the Almighty. "We still have judgment here," and that is quite enough. It is, and must be, based very largely on actions, for of motives little can be known. As these are an important factor in character, an absolutely just appraisement cannot be made by fallible man since he is not able to search the heart.

Big Shoes Keep Feet Warm.

FROZEN or swollen feet are so common among soldiers living in the trenches that hundreds of depots have been established behind the line for the repose of these lamed soldiers, who are otherwise still in perfect fighting condition. There they rest from four to eight days before they are able to return to the trenches.

In addition to the action of water and mud the men have suffered cruelly from the cold. The explorer, Dr. J. B. Charcot, son-in-law to the poet Victor Hugo, has suggested the use of a very big shoe. Polar explorers never found their shoes large enough, he said, and in all cases of frostbitten feet the cause could be traced to tightness of the footwear confining the foot so that it cannot by its own exercise accelerate the circulation of the blood.

This, Dr. Charoot thinks, is the difficulty with the French military shoe, which is so flat at the toe as not to permit the free movement of the toes nor the use of several pairs of socks. The light lacing of shoes also, he points out, is frequent cause of frostbitten feet. American women who suffer from cold feet may read this war account and if it a mind, profit some by it.

Italian Garden Truck.

THESE figures show, approximately, the production of the large market gardens in Italy last year: Asparagus, 4000 tons; artichokes, 71,000 tons; cabbage, 360,000 tons; onions and garlic, 91,000 tons; cardoons, celery and fennel, 33,000 tons; tomatoes, 630,000 tons; watermelons and cucumbers, 163,000 tons; fresh peas and beans, in shell, 76,000 tons.

Boxing is now one of the subjects of physical instructions in the state schools of Australia.

QUICKLY STOPS HEAD COLDS AND SNUFFLES

Catarrhal Germs Cause of Most Colds. New Germicidal Air Treatment Best Remedy for These Common Ailments.

Reliable authorities say that upwards of 90 per cent of the so-called colds in the head and throat are in reality dangerous indications of the presence of acute catarrh. When you hear a person sneeze or cough its almost certain they are throwing catarrh germs into the air for some other person to breathe, and its just as certain that the person breathing these germs will soon have catarrh or a catarrhal cold. The time to make these germs harmless and drive out your catarrhal cold is the very instant you feel a desire to sneeze or cough, or start to snuffle and wipe your nose every few minutes.

The quickest and surest way to stop a head cold and drive catarrh germs out of your system is to pour a few drops of the oil of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) into one of the Hyomei inhaling devices which comes with each large package and place the inhaler between your lips and breathe the germicidal but pleasant smelling air into your nose, throat and lungs. This air utterly destroys all catarrh germ life, quickly opens the closed air passages, makes breathing easy, clears your stuffed-up head, cleans out your throat and ends your snuffling and nose blowing. There certainly is no quicker or more satisfactory way of breaking up a cold, even after it is well started, and a few weeks' use will do away with all danger of chronic catarrh. Sold by druggists everywhere, including Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., who agree to return the full purchase price to any who use it and are not satisfied. In buying Hyomei for the first time be very sure to get the large size, which contains the inhaler, as this is very essential for best results.—ADV.

ELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS" IS BEST HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS.

If you're headachy, constipated, bilious or stomach is disordered and you want to enjoy the nicest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced, take a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" tonight and in the morning all the poison, bile and clogged-up waste will gently move out of the system without griping and you will feel splendid.

Every member of the family should use this fruit laxative as occasion demands. It is just as effective for grandpa as it is for the baby. It simply cannot injure. Even cross, sick, feverish children just love its pleasant taste and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing."

For thirty years "California Syrup of Figs" has been recommended by physicians as the ideal stomach, liver and bowel cleanser. Millions of families who are well informed use nothing else, but recently there has come a flood of spurious fig syrups, so we warn the public to ask plainly at drug stores for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," and see that it is prepared by "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheaper size. Hand back any "counterfeit" with contempt.—ADV.

WEST VIRGINIA GOVERNOR CANNOT DRAW HIS SALARY

Legislature Failed to Provide Appropriation; Several Schools Closed, National Guard Mustered Out.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 2.—It developed today that one of the state officials who is not drawing his salary because of the failure of the last Legislature to appropriate funds for the running expenses of West Virginia is Gov. Hatfield.

The State Auditor has asked the Attorney-General whether he can borrow money until the Legislature makes the necessary appropriations and the Attorney-General has come back with a request for a statement of the moneys expended by the Auditor.

Meanwhile country schools are being closed, high schools placed on part time and companies of the national guard are being mustered out. The effort to have the Legislature meet without expense to the State and pass appropriation bills seems to have failed

ATTEMPT TO BUY VOTES CHARGED IN WEBSTER GROVES

K. O. Gould, Republican Candidate, Makes Accusation to Prosecutor in Open Letter.

REWARD FOR CONVICTIONS

Negro Said to Have Got $75 Fund; "Ridiculous" Citizens' Ticket Backers Say.

K. O. Gould, Republican candidate for Mayor of Webster Groves, published an open letter in a Kirkwood newspaper today in which he charged efforts were being made to bribe voters to support the Citizens' ticket at Tuesday's election. He also sent a letter making the same complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Ralph, a Republican.

In the published letter and in dodgers distributed by Gould, he says he has placed $300 on deposit in a bank as a fund from which he will pay $25 for the arrest and conviction of anyone in Webster Groves who accepts money for his vote.

Four Tickets in Field.

There are four tickets in the field in Webster Groves and political feeling is unusually high. The parties represented by candidates for city offices are the Citizens, Independent, Republican and Socialist.

Gould in his open letter says he was called to a meeting of the Republican City Committee Wednesday night and there he heard a negro tell the committee money had been offered to him to induce him to vote the Citizens' ticket.

Tells of $75 Payment.

Gould said he also heard of a case where a negro politician received $75 with which to buy votes.

Sam D. Hodgdon, Probate Judge of St. Louis County, one of the leaders of the Citizens' party in Webster Groves, said he considered Gould's charges "ridiculous."

FINED $50 FOR ABUSIVE TALK

Jesse Nessel, a tinner living at 4417 Wilcox avenue, was fined $50 by Police Judge Hogan this morning on a charge of using loud and abusive language on the street.

Sergt. Dempsey of the Mounted Police District testified that on March 24 he was talking to Elizabeth, the 10-year-old daughter of Nessel, on the street, when her father approached and demanded that the child go home with him. Dempsey said the child was afraid to go with her father and that Nessel used loud and abusive language. He said the child then started with her father, who picked the girl up and put her on his back. Dempsey said he later noticed blood on the child's lips and sleeve and with another policeman arrested Nessel. Nessel testified that the policemen struck him in the face and that the blood came from the wound. Policemen denied this on the stand.

AMERICAN AIRMAN DEMANDS $100 A DAY TO FLY FOR VILLA

Price Too High and Attack Upon Matamoras Is Delayed While Monterey Flyer Is Sought.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 2.—Lack of an aviator delayed operations today against Matamoros by the Villa aeroplane which came here from Monterey. The Villa officers looked for an American aviator in this section, but they balked at the rate of $100 a day on a 20-day contract, which one American with flying experience asked for his services. They said an aviator would come from Monterey.

Information reaching American army officers here today indicated that operations to reduce Matamoros are likely to be slow. These reports say Villa has no means of speedy communication with his troops opposite here and that railroads are so torn up that, except for cavalry, military bodies can make only a few miles progress a day. Villa has been using aeroplanes to help overcome the handicap of this slow communication and lack of wires.

SODA POP FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Ice Cream Also Dispensed by Mayor Chamberlin of East St. Louis.

Mayor Chamberlin of East St. Louis, who is running for re-election, has solved one of the most intricate problems which have perplexed practical politicians since women goined the ballot in Illinois. The problem was: "What shall we hand out to the women, instead of the campaign cigar?"

The Mayor addressed 23 negro women on the issues of the campaign. They listened most attentively, applauded at the right moment, and went away declaring the Mayor "just the nicest man!" Chamberlin set 'em up to ice cream and red soda pop.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN DEATH OF FIVE AT POWDER PLANT

Coroners' Jury Does Not Fix Responsibility—Company Has Fund to Pay Relatives' Claims.

A verdict of accident was returned yesterday afternoon at the inquest into the death of five men who were killed earlier in the day when an explosion wrecked the press mill at the Equitable Powder Co.'s plant at East Alton.

The men killed were James A. Colburn, Clyde Davis, Louis Murphy, Elmer Kortkamp and Gustav Volz. Colburn was superintendent of the works. His body will be shipped to Hazardville, Pa., for burial.

Responsibility Not Fixed.

Responsibility for the accident was not fixed by the Coroner's jury. The only witness examined was Gus Frey, an employe. He said he was in another part of the works when he heard the explosion and that he ran in the direction from which the sound came and found that the press mill had been destroyed.

The Equitable Powder Co. held no insurance policies to cover losses it might incur through the accidental death of employes. Instead of carrying insurance it set aside a fund to meet these losses.

The provisions of the workmen's compensation act were not accepted by the company. Under the terms of this law the company would have to pay to the heirs of each of the five men four times his average yearly salary, the minimum payment being $1500 and the maximum $3500.

Liability $10,000 in Each Case.

Under the general law which applies in the case of the Equitable Co. it is subject to suits for damages for the five deaths. Under Illinois laws the maximum amount which can be recovered for a death is $10,000.

Colburn lived with his wife in East Alton. A son, N. N. Colburn, is a telegraph operator at Alexandria, La. Murphy had two small children. His wife heard the explosion and rushed to the mill, but fainted when she got there. Kortkamp lived with his mother, of whom he was the only support. Volz, also known as Miller, had one child. Davis lived in an East Alton boarding house.

CARLOAD OF RICH COPPER ORE IS SHIPPED FROM OLD MINE

Skeletons of Twenty Men Believed to Have Been Spaniards Found in Shaft.

ALLAMORE, Tex., April 2.—M. F. Jarrell has just shipped a carload of rich copper ore from the old mine which he discovered near here last Christmas day. The fact that the skeletons of 20 men were found in the long-abandoned shaft of the mine and that near by were found a collection of knives, water bottles and other relics, leads to the belief that the property was worked by the Spaniards in the early days, and that trace of the mine was lost through the sudden death by massacre by Indians or otherwise of the men connected with the enterprise.

The ore which Jarrell shipped to the smelter at El Paso was all collected from the surface, where it has laid for an untold length of time. As soon as the shaft can be cleaned of debris, extensive operations will be started.

The discovery of this ancient mine has caused great excitement. Prospectors began rushing in here as soon as the news of the find was made public, and claims have been staked for several miles around the mine. Several good outcroppings of copper have already been discovered. Some of the ore samples assay about $30 copper to the ton and considerable gold and silver.

THE ST. LOUIS UNION BANK HAS OVER NINE MILLION DOLLARS IN SAVINGS DEPOSITS.

One reason why the Savings Deposits of the St. Louis Union Bank, Fourth and Locust, are growing so fast is because many people prefer a fair income and the knowledge that their principal will not fluctuate, to an investment that may yield a higher rate, but which may fluctuate in value. In other words, they invest their money with us at 3½ per cent automatically compounded twice a year. ST. LOUIS UNION BANK, Fourth and Locust.

STUDENTS' WHISKERS MUST GO

College Freshmen Club Broken Up by Faculty.

SIOUX CITY, Io., April 2. — The Morningside Whisker College Club has been removed from the list of organizations at that institution. The freshmen have been ordered by the faculty to shave.

There are many reasons given by the students for the faculty's order to disband the club. One is that the bewhiskered young men were often taken by strangers for members of the faculty. Another is that the young women of college objected to the whiskers and appealed to the faculty. It is also said that several members of the class who were unable to cultivate facial adornments joined in this protest.

OIL SOAKED PIGS CATCH FIRE

GOSHEN, Ind., April 2.—While William Archer of near Cromwell was endeavoring to exterminate lice on his pigs by using kerosene, a lighted torch fell into the pan of oil. There was a flash, and the next instant a terrified, oil-soaked porker dashed for the open, a mass of flames. Soon a half dozen hogs were ablaze.

All dashed out and circled the yard a couple of times and returning to the pen set it on fire. One of the shoats hit upon a bright idea and dashed for a pool of mud and water. The others then followed suit and the farmer was saved from an oversupply of roast pork.

BURLESON APPOINTS WRONG NEGRO AS A POSTMASTER

Intended to Name Former Supporter but Another Simmons Got the Position.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., April 2.—Postmaster-General Burleson owes an apology to L. D. Simmons, an Oklahoma City negro, for an error he made in the selection of a negro for Postmaster at Boley, Ok., one of the important negro towns of the State.

When Burleson recommended that President Wilson appoint Caesar Simmons for the Boley postoffice, he honestly thought that he was appointing L. D. Simmons. He thought he was doing a favor to a man who was one of his warmest and most ardent supporters for Congress, in the Ninth District of Texas, in several campaigns, and one of the leading negro educators of Texas for 20 years. But he appointed a Simmons whom he had never known and who had never done a favor for the Postmaster-General.

L. D. Simmons sent his application to Washington. The story goes that Caesar Simmons had a friend in Dorset Carter, a lawyer of Purcell, and that recently, when Carter was in Washington, he called on Burleson in behalf of this negro.

"I have already made up my mind to appoint Simmons," said Burleson, speaking, of course, of the Texas Simmons who had been his political friend. That ended Carter's mission. The appointment was made that day, and in due time confirmed by the Senate.

Welsh Soldiers' Letters Suspected.

LONDON, April 2.—The attention of Parliament has been called to the fact that letters from Welsh soldiers from the front, if they contain even a single line written in Welsh are held up.

Editor's Wife a Shop-Lifter.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 2.—Mrs. Eloy Sweets, who says she is the wife of the editor of a Palmyra newspaper, was fined $35 on each of two charges of shoplifting, after she had pleaded guilty. She says her husband, in addition to running a newspaper, is employed in a bank. She told the court she was unable to account for her actions in stealing articles from two department stores.

TWO IN CRAPS GAME ARRESTED

Traveling Salesman Complains After He Loses $100.

David Levy, a traveling salesman, last night caused the arrest of two men after he had lost $100 in a craps game in a room at the St. Regis Hotel, Broadway and St. Charles street.

Levy said he and August Ellison of 2608 Locust street were playing cards in Levy's room at the hotel, when Charles Pfeiffer, who occupied room 403 in the same hotel, suggested a dice game. A man introduced by Pfeiffer as "Dr. Peters" joined in the game, he said, and won $100 from Levy. Levy accused Peters of using crooked dice and Peters fled from the room, he said. Pfeiffer and Ellison were arrested and gave bond. They said they did not know much about Peters.

GIFTS FOR BELGIUM ARMY AND MESSAGES OF CHEER SENT FROM MANY LANDS

Nearly All Packages Contain Notes, and Those Inclosing Names Are Acknowledged Personally — Post-Dispatch Writer Tells of Distribution.

By Henry N. Hall.

A staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch who returned to this country recently after four weeks at the front with the allies.

"If you want to see how the hearts of women throughout the world have been touched by the woes of Belgium, and how they are all anxious to help the soldiers who are defending what is left of our country, come with me to the Magasin de la Reine."

One of King Albert's staff officers, a tall, handsome Major of the Guides, was inviting me to visit the place where gifts sent from all countries to Belgian soldiers in the field are received, sorted and prepared for distribution to the men at the front.

The building is a large white stone one, by far the most pretentious building in La Panne. It is here that King Albert is popularly supposed to live. At the entrance gate stands a sentry and a regular guard is mounted, just as if he actually lived there.

Apart from these men, who have quarters in the basement, no one lives in the house, which is packed from the spacious reception rooms of the ground floor to the uppermost garret with the most extraordinary assortment of packages and goods ever got together under one roof.

All Furniture Removed.

All the furniture has been removed with the exception of the big gold framed mirrors and consoles, and here and there on a marble mantelpiece a heavy bronze or clock has been left in its place, but nothing else. All carpets and floor coverings have been taken away and the walls are entirely bare of pictures.

On a level with the courtyard the tesselated floor of neat Belgian tiles is covered with big packing cases shipped from New York, London, Rome and other big centers where committees exist for the collection and forwarding of gifts. Some cases contain only one kind of article, such as blankets, shoes, etc.; others are filled with separate packages neatly wrapped and labeled and containing some personal gift generally made by the sender herself.

Thousands of these personal gifts are also received direct by parcel post, and there is a big room on the next floor in which these gifts are unpacked and classified. Let us take one of the parcels haphazard and see what is done with it.

Here is a small package done up in brown paper sent from Melbourne, Australia. It is opened and found to contain one green woollen muffler about four feet long and a pair of gray woollen socks. There is a little note thrust inside one of the socks. It says, "With best wishes for the triumph of a just cause." There is a signature and an address. The letter is taken and filed away. It will be answered by one of the Queen's ladies in waiting, who will send a little note of thanks.

Socks Mighty Welcome.

The gray socks are mighty welcome. They are added to a big pile of other socks, of all colors and sizes, some thick and some thin, but all badly needed; for woollen socks come near to being the one thing of which the men in the trenches stand most in need.

The green muffler is really too small to be of any great use. It will be distributed, of course, but it will probably go to a sick man who is convalescing, and needs something to put around his neck when he goes out of doors. It is neither big enough nor heavy enough for the men exposed to the weather they are getting on the Yser. A woman who is passing on the goods says:

"It is wonderful how big a muffler has to be to wear over the heavy uniforms of the men. The best and most useful kind of a muffler is knitted hollow, like a stocking, so that one end can be pulled over the head to cover the ears, and then the rest can be wound around the neck. That is the only kind of a muffler which really protects the men and keeps them warm through the long, cold night, but it should be 6 feet long; and less than 15 per cent of the ones we receive answer that description."

Gifts in Large Lots.

This is only too plainly evident in looking over the enormous piles of gifts, nearly everyone of which represents some personal effort on the part of the maker. The things that have been bought usually come in large lots. Some man will send 50 dozen pairs of socks or 10 dozen mufflers and these gifts come wrapped by the stores they were ordered from with just a visiting card inside bearing some such inscription as "good luck" or "for the men in the trenches" or "Brave Belgium."

But it is the other gifts that make up the bulk and offer the greatest variety. They come mainly from the United States and from Canada and Australia, as at least 60 per cent of the accompanying letters are written in English, although quite a few of the donors from English speaking countries write their little notes in French. Astonishingly few of the contributions are anonymous, but some do come without any address and just a card signed by "A Friend of Belgium" or "Fair Play."

Although the American, British and French Red Cross societies have held exhibitions of the kind of gifts to make for the soldiers, and have issued printed instructions for those who are doing the knitting, very little attention has been paid to them. The average woman thinks she knows best what to send and as she is making it herself, she makes it according to her own ideas.

Many Are Too Small.

At least half of the things sent are too small. The mufflers are too short and the gloves and the socks sent are often sizes too small. The usual size of the boot served out for the winter campaign was size 11, and very few were used smaller than size 10. The heavy woollen socks worn inside a No. 9 boot caused congestion, prevented the circulation of the blood and led to more frost bitten feet than anything else. But when the bigger boot was filled up with a couple of pairs of thick socks the feet remained warm and comfortable.

But it was in colors perhaps even more than in shape or size that the gifts might have been improved upon. An extraordinary amount of green and mauve wool was used up by people who knit for the soldiers. They had evidently been told to use light colors, and while I saw two or three pink mufflers, there were dozens of green and mauve ones and not a few light blue.

But that did not really matter. The prettiest art shade of wool will lose its freshness in a few hours in the trenches, and so long as the colors were light it was all right. The only exception made was against red, for, incredible as it may seem, some people had knit caps and mufflers of the color of red sealing wax. These were all sent down to the hospitals for use among the convalescents. This was also the disposition of the many flannel dressing gowns and bathrobes sent, and of the worsted slippers, some of which were neatly lined.

But it is of course the unusual or inappropriate thing that always strikes the eye in going over a mass of gifts of this description. The great majority of the things were of the utmost possible use and were most thankfully received and used. During one month more than 50,000 pairs of woolen socks, 30,000 mufflers and stomach bands, 30,000 pairs of gloves and a vast quantity of other things, such as heavy vests, woolen wrist warmers, caps of all kinds and sizes and heavy underclothing, were taken from the Magasin de la Reine and distributed to the men in the trenches.

There were also large quantites of what one might call regular army supplies as distinguished from the personal gifts mentioned above. Many of these were contributed by private individuals, and even by the Governments allied with Belgium. Great Britain sent over 50,000 pairs of army boots for King Albert's men at the beginning of February, and there were hundreds of dozens of heavy flannel shirts, of woolen addition to clothing, many omforts were sent over. One obleman sent over 1,000,000 and large quantities of to-colate and preserves were erything outside of the regu-supplies went to La Panne for and passed through the big e.

ll in all, the Belgian army hing it needed when I saw it. hat I have often seen men in wearing woode sabots in the but the men have told me were accustomed to wearing he fields and that they were er than boots because they feet dry always. nner of distribution to the sol-very simple. If it was some casion, as when the Queen lf before Christmas to distrib-late and cigarettes in the the gifts were taken out to line. Otherwise, in the ordi-nary course of events, this is how it would be done: A batallion coming back from the trenches for repose would be in need of fresh socks. A requisition would be made on the Magasin de la Reine for say 800 or 900 pairs, and these would be sent down to the divisional headquarters of the corps of which the battalion belonged. They were dis-tributed to the men the next morning just the same way that their rations would have been.

Care of the Wounded.

A special effort was made to fit out men who had been wounded and were going to the front to rejoin their regi-ments. Every time that a man left the hospital his kit was examined and if he needed anything it was supplied from the Queen's stock. In every case where directions were sent with the gift the donor's wishes were scrupulously com-plied with. Thus I saw a whole box full of gifts marked "pour les blesses" (for the wounded), and every one of the things made with that intention was distributed through the hospitals.

The utmost care was taken in ac-knowledging the receipt of the gifts whenever the donor could be traced. In most cases, of course, a letter or card accompanied the parcel, but sometimes the sender's name was only written on the outside and had been more or less obliterated by constant handling or by a postmark.

These wrappers were put aside and the staff officers themselves were often ap-pealed to by the Queen or her ladies-in-waiting to aid in deciphering the super-scriptions.

Although the Belgian soldiers did not have quite as many luxuries as were showered upon Tommy Atkins by Great Britain and her colonies, their gifts came from a wider circle and had a far more personal touch. The British sol-dier at the front got everything from homemade cake and rounds of beef to tins of jam and boxes of sardines. If he got a muffler or a pair of socks it was knitted for him by his mother, his wife, his sister or his sweetheart, and he was not backward about writing home to his people and asking for anything that he wanted. But the Belgian soldier had no one to write home to, yet he got from the sympathy of the world at large all the things that Tommy Atkins got from the affection of his own folks. It was a remarkable demonstration of how the world, and especially how the women all over the world, feel about Belgium, and how genuine is the admiration her sol-diers have won.

The Champion Is Fading; Havana Reports Say He's No Longer a "Fast Black

JACK JOHNSON NOT TRAINING ENOUGH, EDGREN DECLARES

Willard, Greatly Improved, Will Be the Best Opponent the Champion Has Ever Faced in His Career.

By Robert Edgren,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

HAVANA, April 2.—If Jack Johnson beats Jess Willard he'll beat the best man he ever fought. That is the growing impression among those who are keeping a close watch in the training of the two men here. Willard has grown tremendously since he fought McCarthy, Kearns and the old crowd of heavyweights.

He has become by far the best of the white contenders. Physically Willard has come to bear a great resemblance to Jim Jeffries when Jim became champion of the world by knocking out the great Fitzsimmons. He has the same curly black hair, the same slant of the forehead, the high cheek bones, heavy brows, well-set jaw, powerful neck and powerful arms.

There are a few differences between Willard of today and Jeffries 15 years ago. Willard is four and a quarter inches taller. His reach, 83½ inches, is eight and a half inches greater than Jeffries had. His chest, waist, arm and thigh measurements are almost exactly the same as big Jeff's. But in muscular detail he is unlike Jeff. The former heavyweight champion's muscles stood out in great bunches and ridges. Willard's muscles are long, round, smooth and supple. He has the build that is supposed to indicate great endurance and ability to recuperate quickly. He isn't in the least muscle bound. And in general build far more symmetrical than Jeffries, who, for all his speed, was built like a draft horse than a racer.

T. EDGREN.

illard is so well proportioned from , that fits into a 7⅝ hat, to his 11 shoes that at a little distance n't look like an unusually tall less seen in a crowd. There, of he looms up like a lighthouse. Willard has added to his unusual l qualifications a much improved dge of boxing. For several s, ever since there appeared to be nce of a Johnson match, he has onstantly training and studying. he ring while going through prac- bouts Willard watches every move- t made by his men, studies every- g keenly, prepares his defense and attack and counter-attack in detail, by day. You can see him studying you can see the result.

illard Has an Uppercut, Too.

illard has developed a great left d and a smashing uppercut that is rly as good as Johnson's, and surely ter than any uppercut used by any r aspiring and perspiring heavy- ght. He has a tremendous lifting e in that uppercut. It has robbed training staff of its goat. Each of ard's men is a six-footer. Each ghs 200 pounds stripped or over. h is husky and a good boxer. Yet n Jess uncorks a couple of upper- cuts the trainers are more than willing to clinch or keep out of range.

"If that punch ever lands on me it's going to take my roof off," said Jim Savage a couple of days ago. And I could see by the cagy look in Jim's eye when he stepped into the ring that he hadn't the slightest intention in the world of letting Jess land that uppercut if he could avoid it.

But Willard didn't use it on Savage. He used it on Monahan. Here's a fellow with a good square jaw and unlimited courage. When boxing with Willard he smiles and smiles and nothing can wipe that smile out. In the past week I have seen Monahan flecked with blood, bruised, scarred, his face looking as if a horse had stepped on it. And after each hard smash he emerged with a smile. It isn't an apologetic, hope-you-let-me-off-easy smile, either. It's genuine. I've seen him fairly roll to a corner at the call of time, smiling.

With Hempil it is a little different; he doesn't smile. He looks grim and grimly he dashes into do what he can and take what comes. A deal comes, too. Hempil takes his daily hammering. These two do the roughtest part of the work with Willard. Savage does more of the arm tagging, wrestling stuff. He does the infighting carefully, trying to slip inside—right close inside—where the uppercut can't come winging with so much behind it.

White Hope Gives Partners Chance to Land by Dropping His Guard

ON'T mean to give an impres- on that Willard takes any pleas- re in beating up the men who k with him. Quite the contrary. hen he hits one of his men too d he's genuinely concerned over He doesn't like to take advantage his superior size and weight and ting power. Sometimes after land- hard he deliberately drops his rd, holds his hands at his side, usts forward jaw or body and in- es any attack as the other fellow deliver. He gives him a chance even the score. The only trouble that there's no evening the score th Willard. He takes hooks and ings, left and right and moves his ad ever so slightly as they land. gets plenty of hard knocks, but ver shows the slightest sign of a ruise or a cut. He's trained until s face is like tanned leather. As r his body, the hardest blows his 0 pounders can sink into that do othing to disturb the serenity of his mile.

Monahan has a good straight right. Sometimes he lands it so effectively at Willard's head bobs back like a iron duck in a shooting gallery ack. But he doesn't seem to feel the blow. It doesn't daze him.

Of course, these men, strong as they e, don't compare with Johnson in ility to land and in hitting power. Johnson is a powerful man, weighing about 240 pounds, who knows every trick and artifice of the game. When he wants to land a blow he waits un- til the chance comes, then he puts it neatly on the right spot.

I was talking with Sam McVey.

"I've given up hope of ever fighting Johnson," said Sam. "I'd like to have a chance at the title, but Jack is a pretty good friend of mine, and I'm not going to badger him. I think that right now he is the hardest man in the world to beat. He makes you do all the work and come to him. You have to lead, and when you drive your left out he gets away from it and uses that slash of his. That uppercut is the greatest punch in the world. Nobody can use it like Johnson. We all know how he can hit with it, and there's not one of us that wants to be hit. When he slashes out with that uppercut—good-night."

Jack was pretty fat when he came here," he said. "He had fat on his thighs and around the hips, and that usually is a sign among heavyweights that they're through. He was worried over that fat because it was hard to take off. He's got rid of most of it now. We were talking it over, and I told him not to worry over carrying a little fat, because, at his age, taking it off would weaken him. A man at 28 can get into condition without much trouble in a little while. But when you're 38 it is different.

"Too much hard training takes the snap out of you. I advised Johnson to leave some of that fat on his body, so if the fight goes a long way; he'll have something to burn. You have to have fuel to keep up a hot fire. So he's been training easily to take off the inside fat, and leave a little on the outside. His wind is good now, and he is strong, and with his style of fighting that is all he needs.

Story of Johnson's Secret Training Denied; Champion Is Fit, McVey Says

CABLES were received here today reserving seats for 500 persons leaving New York. The cash ticket sale to date is over $50,000, not counting the reservations. It is estimated at the gate will be from $120,000 to ,000, a large part of the sale being the grounds where the unreserved on will be sold. Today a Cuban ulator offered to pay cash for $15,- orth of seats, if he could get 10 nt off, but the promoters refused his offer.

Heavy rains fell nearly all yesterday. Johnson went to the racetrack, but did not work in the morning. Instead of his road work he went swimming in a small bathing pool near his home, with a stone breakwater to keep out the sharks. It was extremely hot during the night, and the forenoon was very sultry. Johnson said it was too hot to work, and he didn't want to feel fagged out. He said he felt better leaving the pool water; he says he is losing weight because of the heat, and wants to enter the ring at 225 pounds, his present weight.

I think he is not doing enough work for the best results. At Reno he worked hard daily in spite of the hot weather and the dusty roads. Here he looks in good condition, but he would have more speed if he worked harder. He seems inclined to loaf in all of his public work, but Johnson denies that is doing any work in secret.

Sam McVey denies the story of secret training, and says Johnson is in as good condition as he can get into now.

Willard worked just the same, in spite the rain. In the morning before the n started, he went for a long run. followed an auto with the moving ture camera, climbed the hills and t through stunts making his work ier than usual. He said:

"The heat does not affect me. I am ot on edge, and will be right Monday, but I'm glad hard training is over . I would soon have trained too . It is nine weeks now. At El I trained lightly because there was some doubt as to Johnson's arrival, intending to finish with a hard week. I rested on the Los Angeles trip, but got back to hard work soon as the fight was cinched for Havana. I am anxious to have the grind over now, and get in the ring with Johnson."

It was announced today that the new Cuban Congress will stand adjourned on April 5 and will not convene until the 6th, in order to allow the Congressmen to see the fight. There is the most intense local interest I ever saw before a championship fight. Beside the official holiday declared in the Government departments, stores and factories are now notifying the public that they will close on Monday. Many factories have notified their employes that all who show a ticket to the fight will be allowed to take a day off without losing pay.

EXPERTS have figured that if Willard chooses to use the Jeffries crouch, what with his 6 feet 6 inches in height and over five inches reach advantage, no fighter could get past his extended left hand effectively.

Cubs' Chances for Being Pennant Factor Depend on Polly McLarry and Bresnahan

New 2d-Sacker Can Hit

Strength With Stick Gives Louisville Recruit Preference Over Other Candidates—Up to Bresnahan to Supply Harmony That Was Lacking Under O'Day.

NO. 8 OF BASE BALL SERIES.
By Jos. W. Foley,
Assistant Sporting Editor Chicago Journal.

CHICAGO, April 2.

THE hope of the Cubs in the 1915 pennant race in the National League is Polly McLarry, a big, ungainly second baseman, who cannot run, whose fielding is only fair, and whose knowledge of playing second base is exceedingly limited. McLarry came to the Cubs via the purchase route from the Louisville club of the American Associaton. He's a German, whose actions liken him to Honus Wagner. Bresnahan is pinning his faith on the youngster, for Polly can hit!

Hitting strength is what the Cubs need and if they can get the kind McLarry possesses they're going to be right up near the top. Polly hits lefthanded and literally murders the offerings of southpaws. He takes a long, healthy swing at the ball and steps into it, no matter what the speed.

Everybody Helps Polly.

Polly is the only really new man on the club who will be found in a regular position. His fielding and base running has been woefully neglected, but the entire team is devoting its time to instructing him in the finer points. He will never be a fast man, but already he is showing an aptitude for pilfering bases. He has learned the knack of getting the biggest lead possible.

As to his fielding, his four years in the minors did not contain a single incident in which he was told how to handle a ground ball. He picked it up himself and proved to be a bad judge. The youngster is of the brainy type and is rapidly acquiring enough knowledge to work for Bresnahan. Roger thinks so much of him that he has already been given the position over Art Phelan, an experienced second sacker. Bresnahan figures that by combining his hitting ability with his brains, base running and fielding will not be needed.

Three other new men are among Roger's "21." They are Pitchers Standridge and Adams and Shortstop Fisher. The latter is not really a new man, as he was with the club last fall. He was secured from Montreal and the showing he made last year, coupled with his playing this spring, have won him the position over Red Corridon.

The two new pitchers, Adams and Standridge, are experienced flingers. Standridge was secured from Frisco and is a right-hander. He has a delivery called the "fork ball" in addition to the regular assortment of twisters. This freak ball is held between the middle and index fingers and is what is sometimes called a "dry spitter." Standridge has shown enough to land a place on Bresnahan's staff without the fork ball.

Adams is also a right-hander, coming from the Indianapolis A. A. team. His experience won him a job.

Wilbur Good, Frank Schulte and Cy Williams are the regular outfielders, with Pete Knisely bringing up the rear as extra. The trio of regular gardeners doff their hats to no one for consistent work and Roger believes it is good enough for the 1915 brand of baseball.

Strong Pitching Staff.

THE catching duties will fall upon Jimmy Archer and "Bubbles" Hargrave with Bresnahan jumping in whenever the managerial duties permit. Archer needs no introduction to National League fans. Hargrave was with the club last year and caught quite a few games. He is a youngster who will bear watching.

With the exception of Adams and Standridge, the Cub pitching staff will be made up of veterans. Cheney, Vaughn, Pierce, Humphries, Lavender and Zabel are all experienced flingers. With the exception of Pierce the vets finished their jobs. Filbert is on the ragged edge, but is expected to come through all right. Being a southpaw and experienced, Roger favors him as Jim Vaughn is the only other old lefthander with the squad.

The Cubs finished up with the leaders in the grand race made in 1914 and Bresnahan believes that he has made up the difference that kept them out of the flag. Red Corridon at short had a habit of "blowing up" at critical times and the uncertainty of the crimson-topped infielder unsteadied the balance of the team. Fisher is a consistent fielder, so Roger figures that Red's shoes are effectively filled.

Last year there was not the best of feeling on the squad. Hank O'Day and his monosyllabic replies did not make a big hit with the players. The squabble between Bresnahan and Zimmerman last summer in Brooklyn can be traced to Hank, for he gave Roger a little authority and then refused to back him up. Zimmerman and Roger have both forgotten the incident.

Summing up, the team has the players and the spirit. It's up to Bresnahan to deliver. No one doubts that he won't, for Roger is not a newcomer in handling the managerial end of a team.

C. WALKER WILL REPLACE SHOTTON IN CENTER FIELD

Permanent Switch Is Planned in Brown Defense by Rickey, Starting Tomorrow.

By W. J. O'Connor.

Clarence Walker will shift places with Bert Shotton when the Browns enter the list for the third joust with the Cardinals tomorrow afternoon, and the transfer is to be permanent.

This change isn't without reason. Walker possesses what is universally recognized as the best arm in baseball, a powerful whip that works with the rapdity of a trip-hammer. His chances, therefore, for making assists will be greater in center field, where he can cover a bigger beat.

All the great throwing outfielders usually are stationed in center field. Joe Birmingham showed there, while Tris Speaker now guards that berth.

Switch Pleases Walker.

Walker will welcome the change, as next to drawing his pay Clarence prefers to draw applause by his long throws. Shotton is amenable to the transfer, as he always preferred left field. So everybody is happy and the Browns stand to profit by the change, as the possibilities are greater with Walker in a position to cover all the territory he likes. And let it be said that Clarence never shirked a throw in his whole life. How he hates his arm!

Other important changes are promised by Manager Rickey for the third game. He intends to give Dee Walsh a chance in right field, with Kauffman on first base. Alexander probably will do the receiving, while one of the young pitchers will scale the peak. Loudermilk and Perryman are favored to start the game.

Wilson in Right Field.

Chief Wilson, who is hitting 1.000 in the spring series as far as it has gone, will show in right field for the Cardinals tomorrow. Manager Huggins said today he would use either Willie Doak or Dick Niehaus on the firing line, Doak getting the call if the weather is more seasonable.

The proposition of moving the Cardinals to Sportsman's Park this summer was discussed by President Britton again yesterday without decisive result. A conference is scheduled for today between Britton and Owner Hedges to put the finishing touches on the transaction, one way or the other.

Stovall's Job Safe.

President Lloyd Rickart of the Terriers dismissed the rumor that Otis Crandall was to become manager of the Kansas City club with this: "George Stovall is manager of the Packers."

Rickart says he couldn't explain the origin of the Crandall tip. He says Stovall passed through St. Louis two days ago on his way to Kansas City and then to Marshall, Tex., where the Packers are in training.

Withal there is a suspicion that the Kansas City directors would like to attach the tin to Stovall, who said some unpleasant things about the promoters when Secretary Harry Neily was let out. Stovall fought Neily's battle.

A recent attempt to trade Stovall for Bill Phillips, the Newark manager, failed.

Groom Holds Cubans to One Hit; Bridwell and W. Miller Star

HAVANA, Cuba, April 2.—Bob Groom, the Belleville boy, is ready to open the season for Fielder Jones' Terriers. The lanky right hander twirled the full nine innings against the Almendares team yesterday and was returned the winner, 5—0, allowing only one bingle and striking out nine. Lazaga grabbed the Cubans' lone hit, a single, in the fifth inning.

To date the Terriers have a record of eight victories and two defeats against the Cuban teams.

Ward Miller, Grover Hartley and Al Bridwell were the hitting stars for the Terriers. Miller connected for a single, double and triple, while Hartley contributed a single and triple. Bridwell grabbed a pair of singles.

Fight or "Frame-Up"?

A GENTLEMAN interested in knowing in advance the result about which everybody is in doubt, sends a confidential commu to Old Man Dope, begging him to let him in on the inside of th championship battle, in order that he can get a little bet down.

Dope is sorry. Strange to say both the promoters and the fighters forgot to confide in him, on this particular subject. And, although Dope has never denied the accusation that he's some clairvoyant, he reluctantly admits his inability to successfully project his guessing skill 1500 miles.

The correspondent is particularly solicitous to know if the fight is a frame-up and which one is on the cards to win.

Dope came right back at him with the reply that the battle was a motion picture fight and therefore couldn't possibly be framed. Deep stuff, eh?

Seems on the Up-and-Up.

AS to whether there's a "cullud pusson" in the Havana woodpile, other than John Arthur Johnson, no deponent sayeth. One thing that might lead one to believe there is a chance of something being wrong with the affair is that it is being promoted by a bunch of theatrical men who desire to exploit a champion on the stage.

Naturally, Johnson, being black and barred from this country, could be of no use to such a syndicate.

Only on the basis of Johnson's defeat could a frame-up be arranged, since only on such a contingency would it be profitable for either the promoters or bettors.

On the other hand some of those promoting the event are game and supposed to be honorable men. They are taking a sporting chance that Willard will come through against the decadent black man. Besides, there is little chance of their losing money on the venture, even though Johnson should win. It appears a legitimate business chance the men are taking in syndicating Jess Willard's hopes.

Vanity Saves the Day.

THEN, too, Johnson is as vain as they make them; too much so to sell the title. Besides, with his championship gone, the colored fighter would be a crapple forever, while as retired, unbeaten champion he could always be an advertising card and a money-getter.

Many "Fakes" in Title

FAKE fights and frame-u new, even in title co recent times, however, wor pionship battles seem to singularly free from taint been hinted that there wa rangement" in the Jeff-Jo but as the battle was fough fair was palpably on its m

Tommy Burns' title h him under a cloud, Marv always having declared he was double-crossed into meeting Burns at Los Angeles out of condition.

Later, Jack O'Brien confessed that Burns double-crossed him on the same style of frame-up, in their 20-round contest at Los Angeles. Joe Gans twice victimized the public in championship bouts, once with Terry McGovern and once with Jimmy Britt.

The "Dark" Side of It.

IN other classes history records several dubious instances of title affairs. But in Havana the spotlight of the world is on these two men and experts will gather from many points to focus their attention on the battle. That anything can be doing seems impossible.

Probably the most suspicious circumstance in connection with the entire affair is the fact that Johnson weighed 258 pounds when he reached Cuba. That was only two weeks before he was scheduled to have fought Willard at Juarez, March 6.

It would have taken one week for Johnson to reach Juarez, giving him only six or eight days in which to reduce from 258 pounds. The utter impossibility of his doing such a thing makes it appear that something might have been "doing" at Juarez.

Johnson clears this away by stating that he never had any intention of jeopardizing his freedom, his money or his title by battling in Juarez.

We Sincerely Regret, Etc.

NO, Anxious, despite the blandishments of your last letter, Dope cannot grant your request to pick the winners of the baseball games this season. After his mix-up in traffic signals with George Stallings' machine, Old Man Dope isn't even picking his teeth. Besides, it's not good form.

Municipal B. A. Bans Gambling; Sets Age Limits

New By-Laws Also Bar From Executive Board All Sporting Goods Dealers.

While Rodowe Abeken, director of municipal athletics, sprang something of a novelty when he announced that all umpires would have to pass a written examination before being eligible to call plays in the Municipal League this season, there are several other novel as well as commendable rules in the constitution of the Municipal Baseball Association.

One of the principal clauses is article 6, which states that no person connected or interested in the manufacture or sale of sporting goods is eligible to the Central Executive Committee. This is in direct contrast with the scheme being followed in other cities where the amateur sport is governed almost entirely by people connected with sporting goods houses.

The Municipal Baseball Association constitution also states that any person c sons approaching a player of another with the purpose of inducing him to that club will be liable to any punis the Central Executive Committee proper.

GREAT REJOICING OVER RELEASE OF 'APOSTLE' GEORGE

"Hallelujah!" Exclaim Followers of Man Held After Girl's Death at Alliance, O.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALLIANCE, O., April 2.—There has been much rejoicing at the "Brotherhood Association" House since the return there of "Apostle" Percy A. George, "Perfect Man" of the "Kingdom of God" cult, who was released after being in jail five days pending investigation into the death of Miss Amy Tanner. There were exclamations of "Hallelujah!"

Police Chief France's decision to release George was made after a conference with Mayor Barnum, when they had ended a two-hour questioning of the "Apostle." George's release came despite an order from Coroner Doulds at Canton that the prisoner be held until the results of a microscopic examination by Prof. C. C. Howard at Columbus of tissues taken from Miss Tanner's body were made known. The test was ordered stopped by County Prosecutor Snyder, who declared the police and the Coroner had developed nothing of a criminal nature in connection with the girl's death.

"He should be rearrested," said Coroner Douds when informed of George's release.

"Apostle's" Wife Testified.

"I feel there is no reason to hold George further," said Chief France. "The Coroner and county authorities have failed to show that he was connected with any crime and will place no charge against him. Consequently, in the interests of justice, we are compelled to let him go."

Coroner Douds examined Mrs. Belle Sperry George, wife of the "apostle," at Canton as the last witness in the case. She testified that there was nothing irregular about Miss Tanner's illness and that nothing immoral had ever taken place in the "Kingdom of God" house to her knowledge. Miss Tanner she said, had contributed scarcely any money to the "Brotherhood Association," not enough to pay her board.

"She spoke of having a little bank account in Pennsylvania, about enough to buy herself some spring clothes," testified Mrs. George.

Mrs. George declared she believed in her husband and that he received revelations from above.

"Don't you think they are mere machinations of man?" asked the Coroner.

"No," she replied. "I believe they really come from God."

Interrogated regarding her marriage beliefs, she said that if God thought a couple were not spiritually joined, they should apply for divorce.

Doctors Unable to Agree.

"The reason no physician was called for Miss Tanner is that she refused to allow it," said Mrs. George.

Miss Tanner, a resident of the "Kingdom of God" home, died at the Alliance Hospital. George was held as a suspicious person.

Four doctors held an autopsy on the body but were unable to agree as to what caused death.

At the Coroner's inquest, Laura B. Hall, the Tanner girl's chum, in the "home," testified that Miss Tanner's death was due to natural causes.

Miss Hall has been a member of the "Kingdom" for several years.

REROUTING OF CARS ASKED

Public Utilities Director Acts on Union Avenue Complaint.

Director of Public Utilities Hooke today sent a letter to Richard McCulloch, president and general manager of the United Railways, asking him to route the Union avenue cars as they were before the pageant last summer. Until then the cars went south on Union to Berlin and then west to De Balliviere avenue, returning the same way. Since the pageant they have been sent south to Delmar boulevard, west to De Balliviere, south to Berlin, east to Union, and north on Union.

Residents of that part of the city have objected to the rerouting. Robert H. Keiser 44 Portland place, lodged several complaints with Director Hooke and then with the complaint board. Failing to get satisfaction, he recently appealed to the Civic League to back up the movement for the old routing.

BANK DEPOSITS SHOW INCREASE

$16,446,060 More in Missouri Institutions Than in October.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 2.—A statement issued by the Banking Department today shows an increase of $20,000,000 in the resources of the banks and trust companies of Missouri since Oct. 21, 1914.

The total amount of cash and sight exchange has increased $25,000,000 since the October statement; capital stock increased $1,490,825, surplus and undivided profits, $2,196,998.23 and deposits $16,446,060.47. The statement seems to indicate that Missourians are saving their money, but are not borrowing for purposes of investment, as the loans, which are considered the investment barometer, have decreased $3,746,303.27. Bills payable also show a loss of $3,013,323.76.

Electrotyper Dies Suddenly.

William A. Bothe, an electrotyper, of 4609 Alaska avenue, 34 years old, died at 1 o'clock this morning at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Wenzer, 4653 Michigan avenue. He was married and had one child. He became ill suddenly yesterday when at his mother-in-law's home. Physicians who treated him were unable to state the cause of death. An autopsy has been ordered.

KAISER DECLARES UNITY OF NATION ASSURES SUCCESS

After Victory Work for Which Bismarck Laid Foundation Will Be Crowned, He Says.

AMSTERDAM, April 2.—Replying to a telegram from the Imperial Chancellor, the German Emperor sent the following dispatch from army headquarters on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of Bismarck's birth yesterday:

"Your message concerning the stirring celebration in honor of Bismarck has rejoiced me greatly. I would with great pleasure attend personally to do homage to the great Chancellor and lay on the steps of the monument, amidst the representatives of the empire and the people, a token of my reverence for a man who in this present earnest time, is especially dear to us as the personification of German strength and determination, but my duty to the armed German people is to hold out in the field in order to protect and strengthen the empire's power abroad.

"We shall succeed. Our guarantee is firstly God's grace; secondly, the unanimous will to achieve victory, which inspires us all and our solemn vow to make sacrifice for the Fatherland, which has been tested by facts.

"The spirit of unity which has enabled our men in the battlefield to overcome everything that divided us, will, I confidently hope, outlast the din of war, and after victory has been gained will rightly bless and promote the internal development of the empire.

"Then, as the fruit victory, rational life will spring up, in which the German nationality will have full and free expansion. Then the proud work, for which Bismarck laid the foundation, will be crowned."

Thousands at Bismarck Celebration; Berlin in Gala Attire.

BERLIN, via London, April 2.—Almost for the first time since the outbreak of the war Berlin yesterday wore the appearance of festivity, the occasion being the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Bismarck's birth. The whole city was a veritable blaze of color—even more gaily bedecked than for the biggest victories.

Thousands of residents of Berlin gathered about Bismarck's heroic statue before the Reichstag for the commemmorative exercises, the familiar field gray uniforms of the officers displaced by gala costumes, making a brilliant scene in the spring sunshine.

Promptly at noon the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, followed by all the generals and admirals not at the front, the officials and members of the Reichstag and Prussian chambers, Prince Otto Bismarck, Bismarck's grandson, and the civic authorities of Greater Berlin, advanced to the monument from the Reichstag and decorated it with wreaths from the Emperor and from many individuals and organizations. The Chancellor laid the Emperor's token at the base of the statue, with the words:

"No German may be robbed of what Bismarck accomplished. Enemies are swarming about the empire, but they will be defeated, for he taught us to have fear of God, but contempt for our foes, and to believe in our people. Thus we will battle and triumph and live for the Emperor and the empire."

A feature of the exercises were patriotic songs rendered by a chorus of thousands of men and school children. The evening exercises included an address by Maximilian Harden. The statue was illuminated by military searchlights.

The Emperor was officially represented at the ceremony in the morning by his grandson, the nine-year-old son of the Crown Prince, who was in sailor's uniform. The Emperor's wreath bore the inscription: "To the Iron Chancellor, in an iron time."

Wife Hits Man With Poker.

Charles Engel of 1523 South Ninth street became angry last night when he learned his wife, Mrs. Alice Engel, had sent a pair of lace curtains to the laundry instead of cleaning them herself. When he broke several dishes Mrs. Engel hit him on the head with a poker. He was taken to the city hospital.

Family Away, Home Robbed.

Burglars stole jewelry valued at $100 from the home of Anthony Bongner, 1043 South Taylor avenue, in the absence of the family last night. A dining room window was pried open.

A Record Voyage

I SAIL in a gale for Bermuda—
Yo, ho! for the boiling Gulf Stream.

The weather grows ruder and ruder—
I drop in a bank and I dream:

The sea is a disk without limit,
A gramaphone disk that turns round;
The ship is a needle to skim it,
In music of motion, not sound—

Delicious, capricious dance music,
A ragtime in ultramarine,
Whose rhythm must make more than a few sick—
It's wound up for fair, this machine!

Waltz, tango, fandango, maxixe,
With footsteps of foam in our wake—
Now, give us a pause, I beseech ye,
Or something is going to break!

O disk, what a risk, what a revel!
In devil-may-care time we've crossed.
But, now that we're back on the level,
I'm glad that THAT record is lost.

An Old Friend.

CHARLES," remarked the bride, addressing the waiter as she sat at the table, "please pass me the butter."

"Yes, ma'am," obediently answered the waiter, shoving along the dish, "but my name is not Charles."

"Excuse me, Charles," smiled the bride. "It is my mistake," and then, tasting her bread, she reflectively added: "You may not be the same old waiter, but this is certainly the same old butter."

Reward of Merit.

AUNT ETHEL: Well, Beatrice, were you very brave at the dentist's?

Beatrice: Yes, auntie, I was.

Aunt Ethel: Then there's the half dollar I promised you. And now tell me what he did to you?

Beatrice: He pulled out two of Willie's teeth!

THE JARR FAMILY

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By ROY L. McCARDELL

The School Reports of Willie Jarr Show a Percentage Far From Usurious.

MR. SLAVINSKY, the glazier around the corner, came down the street with a cheerful smile on his face.

"Good evening, Mr. Slavinsky," said Mr. Jarr.

"Did you see them boys from school get in a fight, the two crowds, and throw rocks on each other till the police was sent for?" asked Mr. Slavinsky.

"Pity the police weren't on the job when the thing began," said Mr. Jarr.

"So help me! Don't you want anybody to have any fun? Boys will be boys," remarked Mr. Slavinsky. "It only breaks a few winders, and that don't hurt nobody. Only when my little Sollie hollers names at other boys and runs when they throw rocks at him he runs home, and that ain't good business when my winders is broke."

"I thought little Sollie was a very good boy," said Mr. Jarr.

"So he is," said Mr. Slavinsky proudly. "What you think he gets in school—he brings it home on a card—90 per cent! Sure! Ninety per cent for his studies and 90 per cent for his conduct and 90 per cent because he don't play hookey. My, that shows he is going to be a good business man! Ninety per cent is a good profit!"

So when Mr. Jarr gained his apartment he asked casually about the children's monthly school cards.

"They are around some place," said Mrs. Jarr quietly. "I don't pay much attention to them. Those teachers all have their pets and show partiality to them."

"Oh, they can hardly do that in a big school," said Mr. Jarr.

"The bigger the school the more pets and teachers' favorites!" declared Mrs. Jarr. "Thank goodness, our Willie is spirited and independent."

"I take it from this his report isn't very flattering," said Mr. Jarr.

Willie's report showed bargain rates. He had 20 for attendance and 15 for neatness. In his various studies he ranged from 40 to 50. "Why, Willie," said Mr. Jarr, "little Sollie Slavinsky got 90 per cent for everything."

"Willie won't keep his fingers out of his mouth!" cried the little Jarr girl. "Teacher scolds him for that, and he gets his hands dirty at recess, and he don't care. And he puts his pencils in his mouth, too!" added little sister.

"The teacher is right," said Mr. Jarr. "That is how children get diseases like diphtheria—putting pencils and their fingers in their mouths, and money. Money is worst of all. When a child is sick he is given pennies which he puts in his mouth. These coins go into circulation. Other children put them in their mouths, and the result is that there is an epidemic."

"Nonsense!" said Mrs. Jarr, who was antagonistic to all theories she did not advance herself.

"It's true," said Mr. Jarr. "Now, Willie," he continued, turning to Young Hopeful, "if papa gives you a nickel will you try to get a better report at school? And, above all, will you promise you won't put pencils or money in your mouth—anything any other child has handled?"

Willie seized the coin and rushed to the door and out to buy candy, carefully placing it in his mouth for safekeeping after he got on the stairs. And there it stayed till spent.

A MOUSE can scare an elephant, but that doesn't help him any with a cat.

But They Don't Ever Do It.

AFTER a long Sunday-school lesson, and longer sermon, the clergyman requested the children to remain seated, as he had the extreme pleasure of introducing to them the reverend Mr. Simpson, who would now address them.

The little tots wistfully watched their elders file slowly out of church, while tempting visions of a hot chicken dinner and other Sunday goodies appeared to their fresh young imaginations, and fresher appetites.

The Rev. Mr. Simpson came slowly forward. "My dear children," he said, fastidiously rubbing his hands together, "I—well, the fact is, I hardly know what to say"— But he got no further, for a shrill voice from a back pew lisped out: "Pleath, thir, juth thay 'amen' and thit down."

Proverbial Straw.

DIDN'T you get enough sleep last night?" asked the landlord.

"Didn't I get enough sleep?" repeated the other, sitting up suddenly as though galvanized into life. "Tell me one thing; what on earth do you stuff your mattresses with in this place?"

"Stuff 'em with? Why, the very best straw it is possible to get in the whole of this country!"

"Ah, now I understand!"

"Understand what?"

"Why, where that straw came from that broke the camel's back."

Realistic.

WHEN I grow up," said little Ethel, with a dreamy, imaginative look, "I'm going to be a schoolteacher."

"Well, I'm going to be a mamma and have six children," said tiny Edna.

"Well, when they come to school to me I'm going to whip 'em, whip 'em, whip 'em."

"You mean thing!" exclaimed Edna, as the tears came into her eyes. "I'll give my poor children ever

Willing to Please.

NOW, you, as superintendent of a school, object to this saloon and dance hall?"

"I do."

"And why do you object?"

"On account of the establishment's proximity."

"Well, if they agree to cut that out every night at 11 o'clock, will that satisfy you?"

IF wishes were horses beggars would want automobiles.

A Substitute.

HE gazed pityingly on the listless drug store clerk, leaning against the soda counter.

"Haven't you any ambition?" he queried, kindly, and all that.

"No," he replied, with brightening intelligence, "but I have something just as good."

STINGY JOHN MALONEY

STINGY John Maloney! All us fellers thought that he was just about as frugal as a man could ever be. He never bought no sody pop ner stogies for us all, so Stingy John Maloney had been branded "Pretty Small." Maloney had been livin' in the town about a year. He used to sweep the opry house for Hezekiah Greer. He had a reg-lar sal'ry; it was 90 cents a day. He never spent a cent; we s'posed he put his coin away. Each night when work was over we'd all gather at the store to drink up sody pop an' such an' talk an hour or more. John used to come around at times to listen to the talk, but when somebody'd buy a drink he'd always take a walk. He wouldn't take no sody an' no stogies would he try, but, worst of all, he'd always leave an' never move to buy.

The fellers used to tease him some about his bein' clost an' say things which, if said to me, 'ud brought 'em forth a roast. But John 'ud take their tauntin' in a quiet sort o' way. "I haven't got no coin to spend," was all he'd ever say. One day John took a lay-off an' he went away a week. He came back to the town again a-lookin' pale an' meek. He never told us where he'd been an met down at the s then. That night I'll
